SUMMARY.

A further section of the Hindenburg line on over a mile of front has been occupied by the British.

The enemy unsuccessfully counter-attacked, and fierce fighting continued all day long.

Successful raids southward of Armentieres were carried out by the British.

The Paris "Journal" says the British have in one month taken lines occupying the enemy over a year to construct.

Correspondents state that the fighting around Bullecourt and Roeux continues to be furious, equalling Pozieres.

A French communique says there was a very violent artillery duel in the region of Chemin-des-Dames and elsewhere.

An enemy attempt on the French salient at La Berelle was repulsed.

"We repulsed with heavy losses British attacks south of the Scarpe," a German official message states.

The Italians have extended their positions at Mount Vodice and driven back the enemy.

The enemy lines east of Gorizia were entered and 254 prisoners taken.

The Rome "Messagero" states the Austrian casualties during the first four days of the Italian offensive numbered 30,000.

The "Daily Chronicle" correspondent says that the Austrians made a desperate effort to retake the lost ground at Mount Vodice.

Wave after wave of Austrian infantry swept forward, and were broken up by machine-gun fire.

A Petrograd message says the Coalition Government's programme has been welcomed with profound satisfaction in all quarters.

The determination of the Government to take the most energetic measures against anarchy has been warmly approved.

The New York "World" says there is reason to hope that Russia has passed the darkest hour before dawn.

The Swedish steamers Vesterland, 3832 tons, Viking, and Aspen, 3162 tons, laden with grain, were torpedoed in the North Sea.

The Norwegian steamers Lady Najaden, Gunsit, and Gerant has also been torpedoed. The crews were lost.

The French naval vessel Colbert was torpedoed in the Mediterranean on April 30, and 6 people aboard were drowned.

The British Press Bureau announces that the German casualties during April were 61,152, of which 11,979 were deaths.

The total casualties hitherto were 4,245,894, of which 1,042,622 were deaths. Naval losses are not included.

Mr. Kennedy Jones (Director-General of Food Production), speaking at Edinburgh, said compulsory rationing was not yet necessary.

There was, however, necessity for the most rigid economy, as shipping was decreasing and shortage of food was general.

The late General Von Bissing's papers show that he urged that Belgium be added to Germany as a conquered State.

A Russian report states that an attempted attack south of Kalusch was repulsed.

The British Government has decided on a further "combing out" in the case of coal miners eligible for service.

The president of the Zionist Conference has been informed that the Allied Governments favoured establishing a Jewish State in Palestine.

A message from Zurich reports grave strikes of several German munition factories and naval dockyards.

The United States War Department is making arrangements to send a second expeditionary force to France in the near future.

It is probable that the second contingent will be larger than the first one.

The Pope has appointed Monsignor Cattaneo as Apostolic Delegate for Australia.

The second progress return of the soldiers' votes for the Federal election is expected today.

Mr. Cook, at a recruiting rally in Martinplace yesterday, emphasised the gravity of the present position.

Citing the decision of Canada, he said Australia was about the only place left depending wholly upon the voluntary system.

The Minister appealed to those able to go not to fail in their duty in the gravest crisis in the world's history.

Sir John Forrest, referring to labour disturbances, said industry could not flourish with strikes rampant.

Arbitration and strikes could not live together, and one or the other would have to go.

"The farce has gone on long enough, and wiser and better means must be arranged," he added.

A report concerning the causes of infantile mortality has been submitted by a Federal committee.

The committee lays great stress upon the importance of a supply of pure milk and the introduction of baby clinics.

The recent increase in the price of coal means an additional expenditure by the railways of from £150,000 to £200,000 a year.

Mr. Glynn, Minister for Home Affairs, referring to the oil borers in Papua, said the prospects were good.

The whole of the Commonwealth works have been placed under the control of one department.

The 31st list of casualties sustained by the Australian troops on service abroad was issued yesterday.

Of the 1942 names mentioned, 71 were killed in action, 45 died of wounds, and 407 have been wounded.

In addition, 336 are listed as missing, and 81 as sick.

An election to fill the vacancy in Lang Ward of the City Council will be held to-morrow.

Services in connection with the League of Honour week of prayer are being held throughout the week.

Definite action of a concerted nature has been proposed by the Victorian Chamber of Manufactures for dealing with strikes.

Archbishop Cerretti, Papal Delegate, who is returning to Rome, was entertained at a dinner farewell banquet last night.

The thirty-fourth annual business meeting of the New South Wales Alliance was held yesterday afternoon.

The deposits in Government savings banks in New Zealand total £26,901,829, and in private savings banks £2,412,465.

Graziers are greatly dissatisfied with the restrictions that are being placed upon the price of hides by the Federal Government.

Experiments are being made in Sydney to find the most suitable grasses to grow in the Western pastoral areas.

The rabbit-trapping industry is flourishing in Riverina. Trappers are making as much as £10 per week.

The prospects of the wheat season in the northern and north-western districts are not very promising.

The protracted spell of dry weather has delayed ploughing, and there are at present no signs of rain.

The Chief Inspector of Stock announced that the powers of the Tick Board are to be widened.

Cattle ticks were discovered last week on stock running on the town reserve at Byron Bay.

Mice continue to multiply in Riverina, and very serious damage has been done to the wheat and hay.

The plague has extended as far as Temora, 80 miles from the border, and every wheat-growing centre is affected.

There was a sharp advance yesterday in the price of all descriptions of fencing wires.

No. 8 black wire was quoted at £30, and No. 8 galvanised at £35 a ton.

Paint materials were firmer. Imported Whitelead, in cwt packages, brought to £76 a ton, and imported linseed oil to 7/ and 7/2 a gallon.

Yesterday's weather records show that a very cold night was experienced at Coonabarabran (28 deg.), Glen Innes (28 deg.), and Armidale and Quirindi (23 deg.).

Forecast.—Cloudy generally, with showers, chiefly over southern half of State; north to west winds.

THE HOUSE OF DISTINCTION.

ECONOMY'S CALL IS SUCCESSFULLY MET BY FARMER'S MERITORIOUS VALUES.

Public confidence —approval —appreciation— is consistently maintained by, and practically manifested in, the unusually keen and convincing values and the unique Shopping Service provided by the HOUSE OF FARMER'S.

During the week Specially Attractive Values are offered in the newest and daintiest styles in WASHING SATIN BLOUSES, and READY-TO-WEAR SKIRTS.

Special Window Displays in Pitt-street.

EXAMPLES OF THE

CHARMING BLOUSES.

An unusually attractive presentation of some of the daintiest creations the season has produced, deftly fashioned of rich quality, plain and striped Washing Satin—with the closest attention to detail of finish. This offer at the nominal one-price of 22/6 further emphasises Farmer's Blouse-Value supremacy. Here are three of the styles.

Beautifully finished SATIN BLOUSE, with deep sailor collar and revers, edged with band of contrasting shade; front and sleeves neatly set-in with hemstitching. Fastening pearl buttons. Colours: Pink, Helio., Biscuit, Cream, or Sky. PRICE .... 22/6.

SHIRT BLOUSE of WASHING SATIN, finished hemstitching and French buttonhole on collar. In Plain Colours, or with contrasting collar and cuffs.
PRICE ..... 22/6.

Striped Blouse of WASHING SATIN, stripes of Blue, Rose, Helio., or Black, with collar and cuffs of White, or, if desired, in White or coloured body, with striped collar and cuffs.
PRICE ..... 22/6.

Blouse Salon, Second Floor, Market-street.

THE MODISH SKIRTS.

MANY SMART STYLES.

Another important display during this week is being made in the Skirt Salon. Here, too, a wealth of choice in cut, design, and material greets the shopper, yet every number is in strict accordance with Dame Fashion's latest dictates, and is marked at prices distinctly moderate.

We instance:—

Very smartly tailored and cut all-wool COATING SERGE SKIRT, with unique frill at waist, finished with belt and buckle, new bag pocket; slightly eased in waist at back. Can be had in Black or Navy.
PRICE ..... 27/6.

Nicely tailored all-wool BOTANY COATING SERGE SKIRT, new scalloped side effect, finished with buttoning of self material, new collar waist band, slightly eased at back. Can be had in Black or Navy.
PRICE ..... 22/6.

Skirt Salon, Second Floor, Pitt-street.

LADIES' TWEED COATS,

Stylishly cut and well made full swing back TWEED COAT, step collar, sleeves inset in large armholes, Gauntlet cuffs, finished buttons. In Grey or Fawn.

SUPERIOR GARMENTS

FOR PARTICULAR MEN.

We have always made a practice of doing everything as well as it can be done; of being thorough.

Naturally—as the attracts like—men who demand the highest skill and ability have chosen us to tailor their clothes.

Men on the up-grade to success and thereafter—successful men can do no better than have their garments made here.

We invite you on the merit of our work—not on its cheapness, though it is certainly most economical in the end—to try our Tailoring Service.

Call at our Showrooms and personally examine our magnificent range of materials. Fortunately thoroughly, having a huge reserve when the war started, and by careful, opportune spot-cash buying, we have a really grand range of materials on display. You will be wise to inspect them.

THE INDIVIDUAL PHOTOGRAPH!

THE INDIVIDUAL PHOTOGRAPH!
THE INDIVIDUAL PHOTOGRAPH!

To-day everyone has been more or less educated in art, and are keen critics of the lighting, posing, and general build-up of a good photograph; they easily discern the difference between the artistic and the crude.

As a great musician delights to play before a keen critic, so we cater for those who know the best.

Our patrons return to us time after time, and are living advertisements for our skill.

There are photographs that do not appeal to you. There is no soul in them. The sitter has been photographed without expression, and the lack of animation would suggest a statue rather than an individual.

OUR portraits are noted for faithfulness of the likeness of the sitter. They seem to utter that personality of yours known to your friends.

Read what the critics say:—

"The vivacity and charm that thrilled her audiences in the past were just as much in evidence as ever."—Sun, May 21, 1917.

"She (Nellie Stewart) played Nell Gwynne with all her well-remembered vivacity and abandon; indeed, it is right to say that she had scarcely hitherto been chosen to so great advantage as in this particular role."—Sunday Sun, May 20, 1917.

"From the beginning to the end the house was held by that indefinable alloy and charm of sheer acting ability."—Sunday Times, May 20, 1917.

"Her interpretation was a masterpiece of artistry."—The Daily Telegraph, May 21, 1917.

LAW REPORT.

FEDERAL ARBITRATION.

SHEARERS' CLAIMS.

The hearing was continued of the case of the A.W.U. against the Federal Pastoralists' Council in respect to rural workers' claims.

His Honor said that, in order to shorten the evidence, he could inform counsel that he would refuse the union's claim that shearers should not be compelled to handle maggoty sheep; also the claim for double rates for lambs' wool.

Further evidence was given as to general conditions in the industry, and the case stands part heard.

WATERSIDE WORKERS.

Mr. H. J. Adams, secretary of the Commonwealth Steamship Owners' Association, made an ex parte application that the hearing should be expedited of the case against the Waterside Workers' Federation of Australia, in which the association is asking that the union should be penalised for the refusal of members to work at Port Alma, Queensland, or in the alternative that the Court shall order the men to accept work in compliance with the terms of their agreement. The hearing was fixed for Monday next.

His Honor: As you are here, Mr. Adams, I want you to tell me if you are responsible for a paragraph which appeared in the Melbourne "Argus" about the waterside workers flouting the award, not in the Port Alma matter, but in asking for an increase in the rates generally?

Mr. Adams: No, your Honor.

His Honor: You recognise, of course, that what is wanted is that the waterside workers should go on with their work, and if there is any improvement of conditions sought it is a matter to be brought before the Court. That is the course the men are taking.

Mr. Adams: Yes; the words used in the "Argus" paragraph are really their own. I may say, your Honor, that I had a telephone message to my private house from that newspaper on Friday night asking me for information with regard to the new log that had been served on the shipowners. I refused either to confirm or deny the statement, and gave them no occasion whatever for the paragraph referred to. Neither I nor any of the members of my association are responsible for it in any shape or form.

His Honor: I am very glad to hear that. You know how injurious these things are to men who are adopting the legitimate course of coming to the Court and going on with their work in the meantime when such things are spoken of as flouting the award. I hope you and those associated with you will direct your influence towards preventing statements of the kind which tend to bitter feeling and to extreme courses.

SUPREME COURT.

IN BANCO.

(Before the Chief Justice, Mr. Justice Sly, and Mr. Justice Gordon.)

ACTION FOR NON-DELIVERY OF MAIZE.

Denham Brothers v Clan Line of Steamers, Ltd.

In this appeal by defendants, which commenced on Tuesday afternoon last, Mr. Ralston, K.C., concluded his reply on behalf of appellants, and the Court reserved judgment. At the hearing, Mr. Ralston, K.C., Mr. Curlewis, and Mr. Fuller, instructed by Messrs. Sly and Russell, appeared for appellants; and Mr. Lamb, K.C., and Mr. Delohery, instructed by Messrs. Minter, Simpson, and Co., for plaintiffs in support of the verdict found in their favour, with £1640 damages. The question at issues is as to the liability of defendants for non-delivery of portion of a cargo of maize consigned to plaintiffs, and carried from Durban (S.A.) in the defendant's steamer, Clan Sinclair.

ARTICLED CLERK AND SOLDIER.

On the motion of Mr. Weston, John Joseph Youll, an articled clerk, was granted leave to apply for admission as a solicitor, notwithstanding that his articles had not expired. In his affidavit applicant said that he had passed all the necessary examinations, and had enlisted in the Australian Imperial Forces.

DISPUTE ABOUT SLAUGHTERING.

Re M. Bowen (Newcastle District Abattoir Board, respondents.)

Mr. Windeyer, instructed by Messrs. McKenzie and McKenzie (agents for Messrs. Baker and McKenzie, of Raymond Terrace), appeared for the applicant; and Mr. Lamb, K.C., and Mr. Hulme Rogers, instructed by Mr. Reginald Harris (agent for Messrs. H. V. Harris, Wheeler, and Co., of Newcastle), for the respondent Board, to oppose. This was an application on behalf of Michael Bowen, butcher, of Raymond Terrace, to make absolute a rule nisi, granted on March 29, by which the Newcastle District Abattoir Board had been called upon to show cause why a writ of mandamus should not be issued, commanding them to register the name of applicant, and issue a license to him for the slaughtering of cattle for the food of man, at his slaughterhouse, near Raymond Terrace; or, in the alternative, to hear and determine his application for a license, according to law. It appeared from the affidavit that the board had previously refused Bowen's application, and the grounds submitted in support of the present application were (1) that it was the duty of the board to issue a license for the purpose of slaughtering cattle; (2) that the board had no power to refuse registration except for non-compliance with the Cattle Slaughtering and Diseased Animals Act, 1902, and the regulations thereunder; (3) that the action of the board was not an exercise of the discretion vested in them under and within the authority of the Act. (4) That the Board had no power to refuse the license without disclosing the ground of such refusal, and affording applicant an opportunity to correct or remove the objections, if any. Mr. Windeyer said that the application was based upon sections 21 and 25 of the Act, and the ground upon which he mainly relied was the last. Applicant in his affidavit said that he had never been told why the board had refused his application. What was alleged was the unsuitableness of his premises, but that was not the real reason for refusing the decision of the board. He did not, however, depend upon that for his case, but relied upon the fact that the board had given him no reason. Mr. Windeyer also called the attention of the Court to the decision of the High Court in Finlayson's case (22 Commonwealth Law Reports), and ex parte Hutton, in the same reports, and said he took up the position that the board without hearing the applicant and giving him an opportunity of meeting any objections that might exist refused the application.

The case is part heard.

IN EQUITY.

(Before the Chief Judge, Mr. Justice Simpson.)

PARTNERSHIP DISPUTE.

Smith v Cromie.

This suit is still part heard.

IN BANKRUPTCY.

(Before the Registrar.)

HEARING OF CREDITORS' PETITIONS.

Re John Farrelly, ex parte John Edward Chinnery. Mr. Collins (Messrs. Collins and Mulholland) appeared for the petitioning creditor. Adjourned to the 5th prox.

Re George Glover and John James Glover, ex parte Dalgety and Co., Ltd. Mr. H. D. Braund appeared for the petitioning creditor. A sequestration order was granted, and Mr. C. F. W. Lloyd appointed official assignee.

MOTION FOR RELEASE.

Re John Keith McDonell (called Keith Melbonell). Mr. Hill (Messrs. D. M. Myers and Hill) appeared for the applicant. Adjourned to the 28th instant.

CERTIFICATE APPLICATIONS.

Re Ivo John Russely. Mr. Lloyd, instructed by Messrs. Mackenzie and Mackenzie, appeared for the applicant. Adjourned to the 28th instant.

Re John Kendall. Mr. R. J. Foord appeared for the applicant. Adjourned till to-day.

MEETINGS AND EXAMINATIONS.

Re Emma Mary Blackman. Adjourned till to-day.

Re William David Davies. Adjourned till to-day.

Re John Dickens. Adjourned till to-day.

Re Frank Joseph Lappen Mensures. Adjourned to the 11th prox.

CREDITOR'S PETITION.

Re William Laurence, of Marsh, Frenchman's-road, Randwick, importer and indent agent; ex parte the Australian Bank of Commerce, Ltd., George-street, Sydney. Petition to be heard on the 28th instant.

VOLUNTARY SEQUESTRATION.

Thomas William Frederick Bevitt, of Fredericton, Macleay River, timber getter. Mr. W. H. Palmer, official assignee.

Ralph Hamilton Crawford, of 49 Union-street, North Sydney, marine engineer. Mr. W. H. Palmer, official assignee.

INDUSTRIAL ARBITRATION COURTS.

(Before Mr. Justice Heydon.)

EMPLOYEES' REPRESENTATIVE.

Mr. A. C. Warton, Tramway Employees' Union, nominated Mr. John Falvey, of the Tramway Depot, Dowling-street, as employees' representative of the Government Tramways Group, No. 3 Board (traffic). The nomination was opposed by Mr. Claude Thompson (Amalgamated Railways and Tramways Union) on the ground that his union was more representative than the Tramway Employees' Union. His Honor decided to recommend Mr. Falvey's nomination for appointment.

CONSENT TO APPEAL, ETC.

Mr. Phelps Richards, on behalf of the Master Builders' Association of New South Wales, applied for consent to appeal against, and for the suspension of the award for the Building Trades Group, No. 9 Board (Builders' Labourers). Mr. Millard represented the employees. After argument his Honor adjourned the matter until an application from the Newcastle branch came before the Court.

Commenting on the arguments connected with the case, his Honor said that sometimes it was necessary to enter into details for the sake of what was termed fair play, as it was desirable to leave the parties without reasonable ground for complaint. Some people were very particular in this Court about fair play. His Honor instanced a case which might happen in the Equity Court. In a small estate, in which, say, a dozen people were concerned. Each one of them, according to the rules of fair play, wanted to be represented, and it might happen that a dozen counsel would be engaged, the result being that law expenses would eat up the estate. The desire for "fair play," carried to extremes, might have mischievous results. Something of this kind might happen if the parties were over particular and too technical in details.

BUTTER FACTORIES.

An application by C. Barnes and Co. for an award under the Food Supply and Distribution, No. 2 Group (State Butter Factories Board), stood over generally, as there were no appearances.

ALLEGED STRIKE.

Mr. J. A. Ferguson, instructed by the Crown Solicitor, represented the Department of Labour and Industry in connection with an alleged strike of wharf labourers. Eleven men had been called upon to show cause why each of them should not be ordered by the Court to pay such penalty, not exceeding £50, as the Court should deem fit. The information on each summons stated that the men on March 19 last, at Woolloomooloo Bay, took part in a strike, the men then being wharf labourers employed by the Darling Island Stevedores and Lighterage Co., Ltd.

Mr. Ferguson stated that some of the men had not yet been served with summonses. His Honor, therefore, adjourned the hearing till the 1st prox.

CHART TAILORS.

Mr. Crombie appeared for the Journeymen Tailors' Association of New South Wales in support of an application for an award to replace the existing one. The employees concerned were those in the Clothing Trades Group No. 2 Board (tailors and tailoresses employed in making garments for males, No. 2 chart). Mr. Vere Read (Messrs. Vere Read and Bell) appeared to oppose the application on behalf of the Clothing Manufacturers' Association; Mr. R. N. Henderson represented the Master Retailers' Association.

His Honor reserved his decision.

COURT OF CRIMINAL APPEAL.

REX v TURNER AND CLEARY.

There was no appearance in support of the applications for leave to appeal. Mr. C. A. White appeared on behalf of the Crown. Prisoners John Turner and William Cleary were tried together at the Quarter Sessions before Judge Docker and a jury of 12, in April last, on charges of stealing from the person and receiving. Both were convicted, and Turner was sentenced to three years' imprisonment with hard labour, and Cleary to two years. They now asked for leave to appeal on the ground that they could call witnesses who were not available at the trial, and that the sentences were excessive.

Mr. Justice Pring, in delivering the judgment of the Court, said that the prisoners were represented at the trial by a solicitor, who could, if he so desired, have applied for an adjournment in order to procure the evidence referred to. He did not do so, and nothing had now been shown to justify the Court in granting the application with regard to fresh witnesses. As to the ground that the sentence was excessive, he thought, seeing the previous criminal record against both prisoners, that the sentences were not too severe. Prisoners appeared to be offenders who prowled about the city at night for the purpose of stealing, and in view of their record they were much better in gaol than out of it. The indictment contained two counts—stealing and receiving—but the conviction on the latter count could not stand, as prisoners could not be convicted of receiving property which they themselves had stolen. Under the 7th section of the Criminal Appeals Act, however, the Court had power to direct that the convictions and sentence should stand on the first count. This the Court did, and refused leave to appeal.

REX v COLIN FLETCHER.

Mr. C. A. White appeared for the Crown. There was no appearance for the prisoner. Fletcher was convicted before Judge Docker and a jury of 12, at the Quarter Sessions in April last, of robbery, and was sentenced to penal servitude for five years. He now asked for leave to appeal, on the grounds that he could call witnesses to prove his innocence, and that the sentence was excessive.

The Court said the victim of the offence for which prisoner was convicted and sentenced, was a young woman, who, while proceeding home between 11 and 12 o'clock at night, was roughly handled by prisoner, and robbed. He afterwards followed her, and made threats as to what he would do if she went to the police. His record was a very bad one, showing that he had commenced a career of crime at the age of 15 years. On several occasions he had been treated with considerable leniency, owing to his youth, but, nevertheless, he seemed to have made up his mind to pursue a criminal career. In these circumstances, leave to appeal must be refused.

REX v WILLIAM LYNAM.

Mr. C. A. White appeared for the Crown. Prisoner was not represented. He was convicted in April last, before Judge Docker and a jury of 12, at the Quarter Sessions, of feloniously receiving stolen property, and was sentenced to four years' penal servitude. He now asked for leave to appeal, on the grounds that the verdict was against evidence; that Judge Docker was in error on certain directions he gave to the jury, and that the Crown Prosecutor was in error in making a statement that the Crown was not bound to tell the jury anything in accused's favour. He also said that the sentence was excessive.

The Court said it saw nothing in the grounds submitted to justify it in granting leave to appeal. During the last 15 or 16 years prisoner had been sentenced to 11 years' imprisonment, and it was evident that he was one of those incorrigible characters whom no punishment would deter from evildoing. Leave to appeal refused.

QUARTER SESSIONS.

(Before Judge Backhouse and Jurics.)

SENTENCES.

John Lowrey and James Lowrey, who had been found guilty of forging and uttering an order for the payment of £100, which sum was payable in respect to a racing transaction, were brought up for sentence. The former was sentenced to two and a half and the latter to two years' hard labour.

Thomas Ward, who pleaded guilty to stealing £28 11s 9d, was sentenced to 12 months' hard labour, but his Honor said that if the deficiency was made good, and the prisoner could find a surety, he would recommend Ward's release on license.

ACQUITTED.

Tomas Gutierres pleaded not guilty to a charge of assault and robbery on Thomas Keating. The jury acquitted the accused without leaving the box. Mr. Levien appeared for the accused.

Alexander Lindsay Robertson was charged with obtaining money by false pretences. Mr. Fanker appeared for the accused. The jury returned a verdict of not guilty.

BAIL ESTREATED.

In the case in which Thomas Patrick Kenny and Thomas Kalle were charged with larceny and receiving, Kenny did not appear, and his bail was estreated, and a warrant issued for his arrest. Kalle was bound over to appear at the next Quarter Sessions.

GRIEVOUS BODILY HARM.

Henry Whatton was found guilty of inflicting grievous bodily harm on John Ingils Adams, and was remanded for sentence. Mr. E. R. Abigail appeared for the accused.

A FIRST OFFENDER.

William Morgan was found guilty of stealing a quantity of serge, but was recommended to mercy on account of previous good character. His Honor sentenced the accused to nine months' imprisonment, but suspended the sentence under the First Offenders Act. Mr. E. R. Abigail appeared for the accused.

APPEALS.

(Before Judge Docker.)

CONVICTION SET ASIDE.

John Fahey, William Mulheron, and Denis Mulheron appealed against their convictions before Mr. M. S. Love, S.M., at the Redfern Court on March 20 last, on charges of playing a unlawful game, known as "two-up." Each appellant was fined £1, in default five days' imprisonment. His Honor upheld the appeals, and set aside the convictions, without costs. Mr. Maddocks Cohen appeared for the appellants.

OBSTRUCTING TRAFFIC.

Percy Watson Brunton was fined £4, or 21 days' hard labour, by Mr. J. M'Kenzey, S.M., at the Manly Court on March 20 last, on a charge of obstructing traffic on the Corso at Manly. He appealed against his conviction, but withdrew his appeal. The conviction was confirmed, with £2/2/ costs.

SUSPECTED PERSONS.

Mr. D. Levy appeared in support of the appeals of George Williams (or Wallace) and Thomas Bond against sentences of six months' imprisonment imposed by Mr. C. N. Payton, S.M., at the Central Court, for being suspected persons at Randwick Racecourse. The appeals were dismissed, and the convictions sustained, with £2/2/ costs against each appellant.

TRADES AND LABOUR.

DISSATISFIED CARPENTERS.

There appears to be dissatisfaction amongst the carpenters in the country districts of this State owing to the delay which has occurred in making their new award. The secretary to the Amalgamated Society of Carpenters and Joiners stated yesterday that the old award expired in September of last year, and although the wages board commenced taking evidence in July, 1916, and completed an award for Cumberland and Newcastle districts in December, 1916, the country award has not yet been issued. The responsibility for this delay was considered to be due to the system of grouping industries, and placing them under a single chairman, who was only able to devote a few hours each week to the business of such boards as might be dealing with the wages and conditions of their industries. In 1913 a Royal Commission was appointed to inquire into the working of the Industrial Arbitration Act, and it was confidently expected that as a result of that inquiry the present unsatisfactory methods would be abandoned, and reforms introduced that would allow of a much quicker adjustment of industrial difficulties. Beyond the recent appointment of additional Judges, nothing had yet been done, and the position so far as wages boards were concerned was as bad as ever.

GLASS FOUNDERS.

The members of the Glass Founders' Union are idle, as the result of the strike of the glass bottle makers. Mr. E. J. Kavanagh, M.L.C., secretary of the Sydney Labour Council, stated yesterday that he had received a communication from the Glass Founders' Union appealing for financial assistance. The matter will be dealt with at the next meeting of the Labour Council.

TAXI-DRIVERS' UNION.

The Chauffeurs and Taxi-Drivers' Union has agreed to co-operate in a movement initiated by the Sydney Chamber of Commerce for the improvement of the main roads. The Automobile Club of Australia has also decided to co-operate with the Chauffeurs and Taxi-Drivers' Union in advocating the establishment of a special traffic court in Sydney.

MARRICKVILLE HONOUR ROLL.

On Sunday evening a second honour board was unveiled at St. Clement's, Marrickville. The church was crowded, over 1000 being present. The ceremony of unveiling the board was performed by Private Cuthbert Clark, a returned wounded soldier. He was one of the first of the lads who went to the front from the church. The service was read by the rector, Archdeacon Martin, and the sermon was preached by Chaplain the Rev. A. S. Stoddart, who dealt at some length with the work among the soldiers in the hospitals of Egypt, England, and France.

ALLEGED FORGERY.

At the Central Police Court yesterday Louis David Thompson, 51, was charged with having at Sydney, on May 19, with intent to defraud, forged a Commonwealth £5 banknote.

The Police Prosecutor (Sergeant Mitchell) said that Thompson was found at Randwick Racecourse with 32 forged £5 notes in his possession.

On the application of the police a remand was granted till May 29. Bail was fixed at £100, with two sureties in £50 each.

TRAMS AND TRAM CONDUCTORS

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—During my last visit to the old country I paid special attention to the various designs of tramcars, both in England and Scotland. I failed to see any tram so constructed that the conductor who sold or distributed tickets was obliged to stand on a narrow ledge, exposed to sun and rain, with correspondingly unnecessary fatigue.

Now, in the system in vogue in most of the trams in Sydney, it must be clear that it would be dangerous to engage any but young, active men, at the athletic period of their career, to stand on a narrow board with a vehicle often going at a very rapid rate, and with all the attendant duties, not only of distributing tickets, but giving change for high-priced coins to those who never think of relieving the conductor by carrying exact fares. If, however, the trams were so constructed that the conductor could walk from end to end under shelter, and with complete safety, these duties could be performed by men of middle age or by those who were not fitted for the more arduous occupations of labour. The young men now engaged as conductors are learning nothing, whereas thousands of them could be directed into skilled trades, in which there would be chances of advancement all along our industrial life. This class of man will be wanted more than ever in the near future. Then, as regards rendering assistance to the Empire at this time when all our forces are necessary, it does seem a pity that such a body of men, so splendid as most of them are in physique, should be wasting their time on work which requires very little intelligence, as well as leading nowhere. No doubt the expense would be great in reconstructing the carriages, and possibly other designs might not be so popular with the travelling public, but all this expense and any slight inconvenience, which latter is problematical, would be more than compensated by the distribution of such a fine body of young Australians among those who add to the productiveness of the country.

I am, etc,

M. M'MILLAN.

CHAPTER XIII.—Continued.

"Do you call it checking it, to leave the stuff in her room? But there, your inconsistency is too glaring to need mention. The cause of what you have prepared for me to see upstairs, is not brandy but drugs. I know how you have dose it before. I know the treatment to which that unhappy girl has been subjected."

"I don't—understand. I can't——"

"I will be more candid than you. Dr. Wetherton is my informant, and but for the accident he met with on leaving your house yesterday, he would have been with me to-day. And it was at my request he came here yesterday."

"She has been solely in Dr. Wetherton's hands, and whatever medicine she has had has been by his prescription."

"And I know the reasons used to compel him to prescribe. But it is waste of time to discuss all that now. I tell you, that you may see the uselessness of this last pretence of yours. Miss Ledfield is no such victim as you declare. She has been drugged, and the smell of drink is the real pretence, intended to disgust and shock me. I will prove all this. I am going now, and will return very shortly with a specialist, who will decide between us."

"I cannot allow that poor girl to be disturbed any more to-day. I will not allow any doctor to see her," she declared angrily.

"I am pleased to see that your terrible grief has passed. However, if you persist in this attitude it will not help you in the slightest, and it will most certainly——"

He broke off as Gregg rushed into the room. "My lady, I must speak to you at once; at once," she cried in the utmost excitement. "Miss Muriel ——" she paused at a gesture from her mistress.

"You had better go, Mr. Carton," said the latter.

"On the contrary, if this concerns Miss Ledfield I must know what it 's," replied Frank firmly.

Lady Ledfield hesitated, and then turned to the woman. "Leave the room, Gregg. I will come to you presently. Do you hear me? Leave the room," she added as the nurse lingered. At that she went, and her mistress resumed her seat and waited in silence for Frank to make the next move.

"I have no wish to prevent your going to her," he said, embarrassed by the awkwardness of the situation.

"I am obliged by your permission, sir," said Lady Ledfield with a curl of the lip, as she got up and went out.

He remained a few minutes sorely perplexed what to do, and at length decided to lose no more time before bringing a doctor to Muriel. As he opened the door Lady Ledfield met him.

"Has anything happened to Miss Ledfield?" he asked anxiously.

"Nothing more than you have already seen for yourself, Mr. Carton, but I came to say that I have considered matters, and am perfectly willing to leave everything in your hands in regard to her."

"It is a very sudden change," he said, wondering what had caused it.

"It is because I recognise I have no alternative."

"I am going for a doctor, and shall return in less than an hour."

He hurried out of the house, with a feeling of intense elation at the result of his visit, and absolutely confident that all the obstacles had at last been overcome.

He went first to a hotel in order to obtain the name and address of a specialist, and the last thought his mind was that he was to find waiting for him there difficulties before which all previous obstacles paled into utter insignificance.

CHAPTER XIV.

FELLOW-PASSENGERS.

The Agrippa, one of the newest and finest vessels of the Unic line, was racing across the Atlantic, and every possible pound of coal was being shovelled into her furnaces in the attempt to lower the record for the eastern passage; and one of the passengers was more than delighted by the speed she made.

This was Gordon Carton, Frank's father, who was hurrying in hot haste to London as the result of Frank's last cable—that he could not give up Muriel.

He had been only too glad to hear that Frank thought of marrying, had sympathised with his troubles, and cheered him with every possible encouragement until the letter had arrived saying that Muriel was the daughter of Sir James Ledfield, as Frank had believed when writing home.

The news had disturbed and troubled him intensely, threatening, as it did, to rake up secrets of the past which had been buried for over twenty years. Of all the girls the wide world over the last he would have wished Frank to marry was James Ledfield's daughter, for his fear was that the man was his younger brother.

"It's like a hideous nightmare that the boy should have fixed on my brother's child," he said to his wife over and over again after the receipt of the letter.

"But it may not be your brother after all," she had suggested; and it was to settle that possibility that he had determined to cross the Atlantic.

He hoped fervently that his wife's suggestion was correct; and the fact of the title strengthened the hope. All that he remembered of his brother made it extremely unlikely that he could ever have done anything to win a knighthood, and there was nothing in the family antecedents to make it possible for him to have inherited a title.

The twenty years and more which had intervened since he had seen his brother—years of great prosperity and much happiness—seemed very short as the events of the past were recalled now; and the complete change in himself was surely one of the most remarkable. He had been very wild in his youth, and his excesses and dissipation had culminated in a secret marriage, the discovery of which had led to the final breach with his father, who had packed him off to America and insisted upon his changing his name. From that moment he had been Gordon Carton.

But the change of name and country had not sobered him, and he was little better than a drinking loafer in New York's Bowery, when the news of his young wife's death had reached him. He had then been on the verge of utter ruin, and he recalled his bitter thought at the time—that she was far better dead than tied to such a wastrel outcast.

He was almost at the last extremity when suddenly another influence had come into his life. The influence of a good angel. The deserted wife of a scoundrel named John Eldwood. She had saved him, rousing what was left of his manhood; and all that had occurred since was due to her. There had been nothing but the purest regard between them, and he had never ceased to recall how her efforts had helped him. The resolve to work, the difficulties through which she cheered him, the fight against temptations, the gradual and hardly won victory, the beginning of real success, and then the opportunity of better things in Canada which had come just when they heard of her husband's death.

They had been married at once in order to go to the new life together. A year of infinite happiness for them both had followed, and then a sudden trouble. He learnt that Eldwood had purposely spread the report of his death in the hope that his wife would marry again and thus be the victim of his infamous blackmail.

That was the one secret Carton had kept from the wife he idolised, owing to his dread that she would feel bound to leave him. It had been unthinkable that she should ever return to the clutches of such a brute as Eldwood.

He had submitted to be blackmailed, taking the most careful precaution to prevent Eldwood tracing them. He had gone to New York to see the man, and for some years had paid him liberally through a confidential agent. Then Eldwood had been arrested, sentenced to a long term of imprisonment, and released only a short time before this hurried decision to go to England.

Carton's intense anxiety to settle the doubt whether Sir James Ledfield was really his younger brother, his distress on Frank's account, and the dread of the disclosure about the past, put all other thoughts out of his mind.

"I hope to heaven he won't prove to be that sneak of a brother of mine," was his fervent wish, as he rose from his chair and paced the deck. He had always thought of James as a poor creature. "He'd make the worst of everything to the boy. But if it's all right, he shall marry that girl, if money will do the trick," he added, his clear-cut, pleasant, still youthful-looking features breaking into a bright smile.

He was ready to give all he possessed to secure Frank's happiness. And there was absolutely nothing against the lad—he still thought of Frank as a lad, after the manner of fathers—he was clean-living, straight as any man could wish his boy to be, would make a splendid husband for any woman, and would be rich enough to content even a miser.

PROSPECTS OF THE ALLIES.

Subjects of the allied countries yesterday received three sharp warnings of the folly of making their plans on the assumption that the war may soon be brought to an end. The speeches of Lord Derby, Mr. Henderson, and Sir Robert Borden were all authoritative; but that of Sir Robert Borden was the most important because the opinions expressed in it are soon to be translated into acts. Sir Robert Borden is so convinced of the strength of the German resistance that he intends to introduce conscription in order that the Canadian troops at the front may be reinforced and the divisions maintained at their present number. His proposal has been well received in the Dominion, though Sir Wilfrid Laurier is not yet certain whether the Liberal party will support it. The Canadian House of Commons is near the end of the term for which it was prolonged, so that conscription may conveniently become an issue at a general election, if the Opposition makes such a course necessary. Whatever form the discussion may take, the example of the United States is bound to have considerable influence. Since the Canadian people are determined to keep their divisions up to strength it will convince them that conscription is at once the fairest and the safest plan. But whether the Canadian people secure their reinforcements by conscription or the voluntary system, Sir Robert Borden's speech will not lose its value as a warning. He does not say that the war will not end in 1917, or that the German power will not be broken, as Sir Douglas Haig predicted it would be. But he does say that the nation which neglects to provide for its continuance disregards its own interests, and at the same time betrays the men whom it has already sent. Each of these grounds might be applied with the same force to Australia as to Canada, or perhaps with even greater force. Australia is affected far more directly than Canada by the possibility of German aggression. For us the maintenance of the British Empire at its present strength is a condition not only of our freedom but of the support of our social and industrial ideals. There is no need to compare the achievements of the Canadian soldiers in France with those of the Australians at Gallipoli, in France, and in the desert. The Canadians at Ypres saved the Allies from a grave disaster, and they began their advance by a striking success. But the obligations of the Australian people to their soldiers are as great as those of the Canadian people to theirs. The fighting at Bullecourt was only the last of many examples of heroism and endurance which will have given the Australian people a claim to have contributed a measurable part to the allied victory. The obligation which Sir Robert Borden recognises is, therefore, binding on the Australians no less surely than on the Canadians. Sir Robert Borden's example teaches us that it can be fulfilled only if we provide against the worst that may happen. It reminds us that we are likely to secure the best the more we show that we have made our preparations for a long war. The Germans will always be encouraged to resist as long as they know that in 1918 there will be some sign of weakness in the organisation of the Allies. They will be the more inclined to agree to satisfactory terms if they recognise that to whatever date they continue the struggle they will find the Allies as determined and as effective as they are to-day.

Australian readers will be bound to contrast the speeches quoted in our cablegrams with others of a different tone delivered last year. In September of last year Lord Derby and the present Prime Minister, then Secretary of State for War, were speaking of the approaching collapse of the German resistance. Mr. Hughes in this country was making his plans on the assumption that the worst of the German resistance would have been overcome by the end of July. Possibly Mr. Hughes's expectation may still be verified, but the events which have happened show that no nation is safe which does not provide against unforeseen and unforeseeable misfortunes. The strength of the Allies in the present offensive has been equal to the most sanguine hopes. The British supplies of artillery have been more abundant than ever, and their artillery has been more scientifically directed. The French have once more shown astonishing reserves of energy and skill. The Italians have worked as a united people, and their soldiers have overcome the most formidable obstacles. If Germany had been attacked on her Eastern frontier as she has been on the West and the South it may be that the statesmen would have been justified as prophets. The basis of their plans has been destroyed, however, by the breakdown of the Russian army and the consequent release of troops for the West. The organisation of German man-power which Sir Robert Borden admires has thus been strengthened by the accession of new troops and supplies of munitions. The German reinforcements have not prevented the Allies from attacking the Hindenburg line at many points with success. But they have been able to fling in one counter-attack after another so that the Allies have been occupied for many days in holding their gains. If the war were to be decided by a process of attrition the German system would no doubt suit the plans of the Allies. Since it is essential to victory that the war of manoeuvre should be restored, the counter-attacks are by no means welcome. In shaping their plans for the future the Allies have long ceased to value the pressure of famine or the prospects of revolution. No statesman, even within the wall of callousness with which spectators of the war must surround themselves, can contemplate a war of attrition except as a preface to open warfare. Open warfare will not be re-established as long as the Germans can throw in men to fight for every vulnerable spot, and to fight with the highest degree of the national courage. We can only be certain that it will be re-established if the Allies look ahead as they are looking to-day, and if they provide for the most unwelcome contingencies as the people of the United States are doing and the people of Canada are proposing to do.

FEDERAL DEFICIT.

The importance of public finance is every day being brought more closely home to the people of the Commonwealth. As taxes have to be paid there is a growing realisation that we are at war, and that being at war involves great financial sacrifice. It had been hoped that the present year would have passed with the accounts at least on the right side of the ledger, if such an expression is applicable when millions sterling of borrowed moneys are being annually disbursed with no more to show for them than the half-yearly interest bill. The Treasurer in the Administration, now no more, had made certain provision, but his arrangements never received the sanction of law. So the public have been saved the war-time profits tax, and in exchange they have a deficit. It had been estimated that there would be a so-called surplus at the close of the financial year on June 30 next, of close on £400,000; but instead a deficit of two and a quarter millions is now confidently looked for. Of course this money will sooner or later have to be found, and the taxpayers will have to find it. They have escaped so far, but their relief is but temporary. We have not yet learned the art of paying interest on loans out of new loan moneys, as the Germans do. May we never need to resort to such methods. But one of the weaknesses of our scheme of finance, if weakness is a word that can be fairly used in such a connection, is that we must pay our way as we go, or very soon afterwards. There is no method of putting off the evil day more than a month or two. The Government can lean upon its bankers for a brief season, that is all. It cannot finance the country on an overdraft.

It is not the war-time profits tax alone that has caused trouble. The Treasurer has lost some £800,000, which he calculated upon receiving during the current fiscal year from that source. But he also built upon receiving £150,000 more from the amusements tax than it is now expected to yield; and Customs and excise duties are to produce £1,000,000 less than had been expected. As there was a surplus at the beginning of the financial year, and, as some minor sources of revenue exceed the estimates, the deficit will be much as above stated. So much for the current year; what of the future? The Government is already making arrangements for the restriction of the importation of luxuries. If that policy be carried out to any extent Customs receipts must fall off in a still more marked way in the near future. The scarcity of tonnage has already had this effect, and before long the same cause may bring about a still greater diminution of Federal revenue. If revenue receipts dwindle in any one direction the Treasurer must make arrangements for them to increase in others. There is but one alternative, and that is to curtail expenditure. As far as the war disbursements are concerned no falling off can reasonably be looked for. Indeed it is certain that before we are very much older still another war loan prospectus will be issued. This will mean still more interest to be found each half-year, and some sinking fund as well if the Government foolishly, in our opinion, makes its sinking fund proposal apply during the continuance of the war. There are other directions in which economy could be practised with advantage to the community. Certain public works should be immediately suspended, partly because the cost of all materials is now extortionate, and partly because there is a scarcity of certain kinds of labour. Furthermore, what labour is not suitable for the front can to-day be most advantageously employed increasing our primary production, more particularly of foodstuffs. The whole financial and economic situation needs to be reviewed with farseeing eyes. The war is not yet over. No man can say how prolonged it may still be, and our every act should be based upon the assumption that the turning to the long road is still far off. Never was there greater need for a farsighted statesmanship. There is now no place for mere opportunism. Those who can take the long view are sorely needed to-day, for much depends upon an accurate forecast of the future, and due preparations made in advance.

[Written, after consultation, to express the views of the "Sydney Morning Herald," by F. M. Gellatly, 38 Hunter-street, Sydney.]

THE RED TRIANGLE.

When Mr. Asquith said last year that the Y.M.C.A. was "one of the discoveries of the war" he touched a chord that will appeal to many soldiers. The Y.M.C.A., of course, in no way arose as one of the incidents of the war. Its origin carries us much further back, but for many a man in the field his first introduction to this beneficent organisation was of quite recent date. The Y.M.C.A. from being a body with a comparatively limited activity has become an institution with an almost universal appeal. It had the organisation, but for years lacked the opportunity for supreme service. The war came and with it the opening which it quickly seized. It has well illustrated Lowell's words:—

In life's small things be resolute and great
To keep thy muscles strained.
Know'st thou when Fate thy measure takes,
And says to thee: "I find thee worthy,
Do this thing for me."

This is the meaning of Mr. Asquith's epophthegm. The Y.M.C.A. has many willing workers, but even willing workers are helpless without funds. The love of money, said the Apostle, is the root of all evil; but he might have added that money itself is the foundation of much good. At any rate this is the experience of those who control the Y.M.C.A. They find they are handicapped through lack of funds; and they cannot do all the good work that lies within the scope of their self-imposed activities. It is for this reason that they are now making a special appeal to the public. And those giving may be sure that every penny contributed to the Red Triangle Fund will be well and faithfully expended. When money is found for charitable and semi-charitable purposes, too often the management charges are out of all reasonable relationship to the benefits conferred. This, however, is not the way of the Y.M.C.A. Here economy is limited only by efficiency. Further than that even the most exacting benefactor could scarcely wish its finances to go.

PRICE OF HIDES.

MELBOURNE, Monday.

Graziers are greatly dissatisfied with the restrictions which are being placed upon the price of hides by the Federal Government through the medium of the Federal Industries Board. Owing mainly to the drought, the herds throughout Australia are estimated to have decreased by fully 2,500,000 head during the last two or three years. These losses, combined with the general increase in expenses and taxes, have made it financially impossible for the industry to be less satisfactory than might be assumed after a cursory glance at the prices which cattle are realising. Moreover, in the State which is principally concerned, Queensland, prices for beef have been fixed by the Government at a relatively low level, especially for consumption within the State. Graziers' representatives point out that in the Federal Government's efforts at organisation the tanner and the boot manufacturer have been provided with all protection for their profits, but the position of the primary producer has been considered very little. The appointment of a representative of the producers to the board is now mooted, but only after a strong protest. This concession, it is further claimed, does not strike at the basic injustice to the producer inasmuch as the whole idea of regulating the hide business is considered unfair in principle.

OIL-BORING IN PAPUA.

ADELAIDE, Monday.

During the week, Mr. Glynn discussed with Judge Murray, Lieutenant-Governor of Papua, questions relative to that territory, where the annual expenditure is £78,000. There is a subsidy by the Federal Government of £39,000, which Judge Murray stated he had decided to reduce by £2500, and eventually, it was hoped, Papua could dispense with assistance altogether. Copra and rubber were the principal products, and of the five Government plantations, four might be regarded as being eminently successful. On taking office Judge Murray had asked for a report on oil-boring at Yalata, and had, this week, received one from Dr. Wade, who was in charge, and who this week would be available to discuss matters. Oil boring was subject to difficulties which could not be foregoen or forestalled, but the prospects in Papua were good.

THE "SYDNEY MAIL."

It will be remembered that when the capture of Bapaume was announced considerable prominence was given by the correspondents to the fact that Australian troops were the first to march through the town. In this week's "Mail" are striking photographs of the ruins of Bapaume as the victorious Australians first saw them. There are also other pictures in connection with the British advance in the west. In view of the forthcoming Red Triangle Day several photographs illustrating Y.M.C.A. activities at the front are of especial interest;

HINDENBURG LINE.

BRITISH TAKE NEW SECTION.

ONE MILE OF FRONT.

LONDON, May 21.

Sir Douglas Haig, in his midnight report on Sunday, stated:—As a result of an early morning attack we occupied a further section of the Hindenburg line on over a mile of the front between Fontaine-les-Croisilles and Bullecourt. The enemy unsuccessfully counter-attacked, fierce fighting being continued all day long. We inflicted heavy casualties and took some prisoners. Fighting continues in our favour.

We drove off raiders last night near Oppy and south-west of Wytschaete.

We successfully raided enemy positions south of Armentieres.

We brought down eight enemy aeroplanes and one balloon. Four of our aeroplanes are missing.

Field-Marshal Sir Douglas Haig, in his noon report of Sunday, says:—

Our artillery broke up the enemy's attack on our advanced posts south-eastward of Epehy.

We made prisoners of Germans during patrol encounters in the neighbourhood of Fauquissart.

Mr. Philip Gibbs, telegraphing from the British headquarters on Sunday, states:—Fighting is in progress astride the Sensee River, north-east of Croisilles, and in the region of Bullecourt, where the English are storming along the Hindenburg line. We are threatening the garrisons at Fontaine-les-Croisilles and Cherisy.

"THESE CURSED ENGLISH."

The Paris "Matin's" correspondent on the British front writes:—Extracts from prisoners' letters testify to the enemy's dismay. One regiment lost eighty per cent. of its effectives in the last battles. "Those," writes the soldier, "who still speak loudly about conquest and annexation ought to be put in the trenches for a few hours under the fire of these cursed English. Then see whether they will shout so loudly about acquiring territory."

ABORTIVE ATTACK ON FRENCH FRONT.

A French communique issued at midnight on Sunday stated:—Enemy artillery has been most active on the Chemin-des-Dames sector of the Aisne front since the middle of the night, and increased in fury during the morning. The Germans from the east of Hurtebise, to the north of Sancy, directed a rolling fire of heavy shells and asphyxiating projectiles on our positions, but the strength of our counter preparation rendered abortive a general assault, which was being prepared, and the Germans massed on the greater part of our three-toned front were unable to leave their trenches. Very lively fighting occured at different points, where they appproached our lines, which ended in our favour, and the enemy, who lost heavily in our barrages and counter-attacks, only gained a footing in our advanced elements north-east of Cerny, on a front of 200 yards. Everywhere else our positions were maintained.

A French communique issued on Sunday afternoon stated: There is a most violent artillery struggle in progress in the region of Chemin-des-Dames, on the whole front between La Bovelle, Cerny, and Hurtebise. The enemy made an attempt on our salient at La Bovelle, which was easily repulsed. A small action enabled us to carry some elements and trenches north-east of Laffaux M. I.

GERMAN REPORTS.

(Admiralty—per Wireless Press.)

A German official message on Sunday evening stated:—We repulsed with heavy losses British attacks south of the Scarpe.

An earlier German message on Sunday stated—Fighting activity has increased in the Arras region. We completely repulsed a strong English attack last evening on both sides of Monchy feast of Arras. The English attacked at daybreak south of the Scarpe. Artillery has been most active all night between Acheville and Quesnt.

We maintained the position we captured near Braye against a strong French attack.

The enemy lost eight aeroplanes.

INTENSE FIGHTING.

Correspondents at British headquarters, telegraphing on Sunday night, report that the fighting at Bullecourt and itsoeux continues intense, equalising the Pozieres battle, or the most serious struggles on the Somme. The Germans have thrown in large masses of troops, but Bullecourt and Roeux are more strongly in our hands than ever.

The Kents, Surreys, and Devons took part in the sternest struggles, and were particularly brilliant when the situation necessitated dashing charges. A German officer who surrendered near Bullecourt excused himself, saying that it was impossible to do anything else as the British had attacked in such overwhelming force. A British officer told this German the number of the attackers. The German said, "Impossible! We came into this line but night 2000 strong." As a matter of fact, the British took more prisoners than the whole number of the British attackers.

GERMAN CASUALTIES.

The Press Bureau announces that the German official casualties during April were 42,838, of which 11,979 were deaths. The total casualties hitherto were 3,245,804, of which 1,042,629 were deaths. Naval losses are not included.

SITUATION ON FRENCH FRONT.

The "Daily Chronicle's" Paris correspondent writes: The 32 miles of French front between St. Quentin and Laffaux have been a mystery since the early days of the German retreat. The explanation is that the Germans played us the trick we played them by flooding the Yser Valley. The Germans flooded the Oise Valley between Berthelencourt (seven miles south-east of St. Quentin and Tergnier (15 miles south of St. Quentin. To the south is the hilly St. Gobain Forest, and but for these marshes and forests the Allies would have reached Laon Plain. The heat during the last fortnight has caused the floods to fall, but a large canal running between several branches of the river makes the crossing of the valley most difficult. If the western end of Chemin-des-Dames is taken the German defence system from the Oise to St. Gobain will be taken in the rear. This fear largely accounts for the desperate German counter-attacks on the Aisne.

ARTILLERY POWER.

The Rotterdam correspondent of the "Daily Telegraph" says:—A curious commentary on the German official claim that they voluntarily evacuated Bullecourt occurs in the "Frankfurter Zeitung," whose correspondent on the western front had an interview with a major who commanded the troops which were driven out of Bullecourt.

The major said: "The English artillery is our real enemy. The English camped themselves around three sides of Bullecourt, but the Prussian Guards and Pomeranian Grenadiers held on, fighting daily and nightly, not in trenches and ruins, but in a series of holes which were under artillery fire, continually changing their shape. It was like fighting in the sea. Two aeroplanes were overhead always directing the batteries. Our communication trenches were under a front and flank fire, and sometimes food could not be brought up for 48 hours, but we suffered from thirst more than from hunger. The smell from corpses took away the appetite."

HOPES FOR A RETREAT.

M. Andrea Tudesq, writing in the Paris "Journal," says: The Germans are hastily digging switch trenches in the Artois and Champagne—an indication of a retreat. For the last three weeks fires and explosions have been of daily occurrence. Moreover, the enemy is emptying his parks. The Hindenburg Line has been hollowed out or burst in for over nine miles from north-west of Queant. The British in one month have taken lines which occupied the enemy for over a year to construct.

SUBMARINE MENACE.

"IT IS FINISHED."

LONDON, May 21.

The fact that submarines are able to fire torpedoes when submerged has increased their accuracy by from 50 to 75 per cent. The Germans are also sowing mines of excellent workmanship and extraordinary power. When they explode thousands of fish are apparently killed, but they are really only stunned and soon swim again.

In order to conceal their losses the submarines return to a different port from which they started.

Sir J. Compton-Rickett, M.P., speaking at Whitefields, said:—After the secret session I was much happier. The outlook now is better than a week ago.

Mr. T. O. Jacobsen, M.P., speaking at Norwood, said:—We have discovered a way. The submarine menace is finished. We are being helped by long days and smooth waters.

FOOD SHORTAGE.

A Stockholm message says the harvest prspects in Sweden are very bad. The production of alcohol has been reduced, owing to lack of grain.

A report from Christiania states that the Norwegian food controller estimates that Norway requires 90,000 tons of grain to enable her to carry on until the coming harvest.

It is officially announced from Buenos Ayres that the renewal of the embargo on the exportation of wheat is due to shortage of crops.

ENEMY'S DESIGN ON BELGIUM.

PLEA FOR ANNEXATION.

LONDON, May 21.

Advices from Amsterdam state that the German papers publish the political testament of the late General Count von Bissing (German Governor of Belgium), in which he said:—

Belgium must be added as a conquered State. Germany must fight on till peace is won at the point of the sword. The present war has shown that the possession of Belgium's industrial region is a necessity, for the conduct of the war is only possible if Germany holds dependable territory west of the Rhine. The Belgian industrial region is not only of great value in peace, but in war; it is absolutely necessary to prevent Belgian industries being placed at the disposal of our foes.

General von Bissing condemns the idea of making the future frontier run through Liege and Namur. "The frontier," he says, "must be pushed to the sea coast. If we lose Antwerp we lose the strong influence Antwerp exercises in South America.

"The only policy is to ensure that the present hostile population will gradually become accustomed to and be content with German rule. Anything less than annexation will stamp Germany before the world as a weakling. Lessen our great Balkan successes, and ruin our reputation in Turkey and the whole Islam world. It is mere phrase-making to talk of the future Germany as an empire of States, each having Home Rule. Germany must remain Germany. Where take into our sphere of might a country which is permeated with German stock? We must see that the German spirit and energy become acclimatised.

"During the peace negotiations we must avoid every indication of how the country will be added to Germany, and allow the right of conquest to be the only guide. We must for ever preserve the present system of a dictatorship."

PALESTINE JEWS.

Dr. Weizman, presiding at the English Zionist Conference, said that though it would be premature to talk of the establishment of an independent Jewish state in Palestine, he had been officially informed that the Allied Governments were in favour of granting the Jews self-government in Palestine, under the protection of a great Power." The highest Catholic authorities had no objection, and an amicable settlement for the control of holy places would be arranged.

MACEDONIA.

(Admiralty—per Wireless Press.)

A German official message on Sunday stated:—We repulsed with heavy loss several attacks on a hill east of the Cerna.

NEW PROGRAMME FOR RUSSIA.

"ARMISTICE MUST CEASE."

LONDON, May 21.

A Petrograd message says: M. Terestchenko (the new Minister for Foreign Affairs) defines the Coalition Government's programme as the re-establishment of a universal peace as soon as possible, aiming neither at domination by other nations nor conquest of foreign territory, but at a peace without annexations or indemnities, based upon the rights of nations to decide their own affairs. Peace should be secured by an indissoluble union of allied democracies. The result of forcing a nation to accept humiliating conditions of peace was seen in 1870. France's wound remained open for 45 years, and the people of Alsace and Lorraine have a right to look forward to the realisation of their ideal.

Prince Lvoff (Russian Prime Minister) states that Russia cannot remain indifferent to the fate of Belgium, Servia, and Roumania. In order that Russia shall not hand down to future generations a dishonourable reputation, the existing armistice at the front must cease.

The "New York World" says that there is reason to hope that Russia has passed the darkest hour before the dawn.

M. Thomas, French Minister for Munitions, is visiting Petrograd. He will remain there as Ambassador for France until a successor is appointed.

A message from Petrograd says: The Coalition Government's programme has been welcomed with profound satisfaction in all quarters, particularly the rejection of all idea of a separate peace and the decision to emphasise the necessity for increasing the army's capacity. The determination of the Government to take the most energetic measures against anarchy has been warmly approved.

Socialist members of the Cabinet addressed a National Congress of peasants' delegates. They stated that all great problems, such as the realisation of a broad, democratic socialist programme, must be left to a constituent assembly. The new Government would have its hands full in the task of running the war.

RUSSIAN FRONTS.

(Admiralty—per Wireless Press.)

A Russian official message on Sunday stated:—Our artillery repulsed an attempted attack east of Kalucem. Our fire dispersed an attack east of Koverka, in the direction of the Rystritza.

We repulsed a combined force of Turks and Kurds north of Bitlis.

ITALIAN OFFENSIVE.

BATTLE FOR VODICE.

LONDON, May 21.

The correspondent of the "Daily Chronicle" at Italian headquarters, telegraphing on Sunday, says that the battle on the Upper Isonzo for a range of heights mastering the left bank continues to develop with mechanical precision.

After seizing Mount Cucco, the hump of the saddle of Mount Vodice was taken. It was a day of blazing sunlight, and the spectators watched the Austrian trenches, which straggled across the crest of the hill. The occupants were wearing gas masks, the glass goggles of which flashed like tiny heliographs. The Austrians in the afternoon made a desperate attempt to retake the lost ground on Vodice. Wave after wave rolled forward upon the hastily improvised Italian trenches, which had been built in the smashed up old Austrian line; but every wave was broken up. When the attack was over groups of Austrian dead were lying everywhere in No-man's-land.

Fighting continued all night, and at dawn Mount Vodice was captured.

An Italian official message on Sunday stated:—We extended our positions at Mount Vodice and drove back dense masses of the enemy who attempted to stop our progress. The enemy in the evening abandoned his counter-attacks and concentrated his artillery on the lost positions, which we maintain. We captured several guns, trench mortars, and machine-guns.

We entered the enemy's lines east of Gorizia, and took 254 prisoners during the day's operations.

The enemy made a diversion by means of a heavy bombardment and infantry attacks in the Trentino, which were unsuccessful.

The Rome "Messagero" states that the Austrian casualties during the first four days of the Italian offensive numbered 30,000.

GERMANY'S PLANS.

From Mr. Penfield, lately United States Ambassador to Austria, who has returned to Washington, and from other sources of information, there has been disclosed a most ambitious German scheme to control half of Europe. Germany planned the establishment of a great military and economic dominion, extending from the North Sea to the Mediterranean, and embracing Bulgaria and Turkey, and controlling the Dardanelles, the Baltic Sea, and the Aegean Sea, with Austrian interests subservient to Germany. Thus the foundation of a German world-empire would be laid. The revelation is regarded as most conclusive proof that Germany's projected peace manoeuvres were merely attempts to gain a truce to enable the consolidation of territory in south-eastern Europe.

A message from Zurich says the "Arbeiter Zeitung" reports grave strikes at war factories and naval dockyards in Elbing-Stettin and Konigsberg.

MINERS AS RECRUITS.

The Government has decided to recruit coalminers who are medically in Class A, who entered the industry since August, 1914, excepting engineers and mechanics.

COUNT STUERGKH'S ASSASSIN

Advices from Amsterdam state that the Socialist Adler has been condemned to death for the murder of Count Stuergkh, the Austrian Premier.

AGRICULTURE IN FRANCE.

A message from Paris says the French people greatly appreciate British help in restoring agriculture in the liberated territory. Already 100,000 acres in the Somme department are under cultivation. British troops are assisting in ploughing and bringing up seed and threshers imported from England.

BELGIAN RELIEF.

AMERICA TAKES ALL RESPONSIBILITY.

LONDON, May 21.

It is announced that the United States will assume the financial responsibility for providing relief to the Belgians. Therefore the committee has suspended all appeals to the British Empire.

AMERICA'S ARMIES.

NEW YORK, May 20.

The War Department is arranging for a second and probably larger expedition to be sent to France in the near future.

A great campaign to sell bonds in the new war loan will commence on Monday, when 500 expert bonds salesmen will scour New York city. The most important financiers are co-operating. Loan literature will be distributed from aeroplanes.

AMERICAN SHIPPING.

Judging by cable advices received in Sydney yesterday by the American Trading Company, restrictions are to be imposed on the itinerary of all vessels owned in the United States, as future charters are to be subject to the approval of the United States Shipping Board. "Evidently the dearth of tonnage is now being severely felt across the water," the manager of the company writes, "and explains in a measure the sharp advance in freight rates that has recently taken place."

GERMAN ARCH-PLOTTER.

RINTELEN'S INTRIGUES.

NEW YORK, May 21.

The German plotters, Rintelen, Lamar, and Martin were found guilty of a conspiracy to prevent munitions shipments leaving America for the Allies. They have not yet been sentenced. The jury disagreed in regard to other defendants charged with conspiracy.

The career of Franz von Rintelen in America was recently described in an American magazine. It is an altogether extraordinary story of plotting and intrigue. Rintelen, an intimate friend of the German Crown Prince, and one of the financial advisers of the German Admiralty, was sent to the United States early in 1915 for the double purpose of stirring up strikes in American factories engaged in the manufacture of munitions for the Allies, and also of bringing about a war between the United States and Mexico. The purpose of the lastnamed plot was to create a situation which would make it impossible for the United States to send war materials to the Allies.

Rintelen arrived in the United States in March, 1915, under an assumed name, which he exchanged for another assumed name soon after his arrival. He became known as Hansen, and he carried letters of introduction to men associated with Mexican affairs. In a bank favoured by Austro-Hungarian officials he had a credit of several hundreds of thousands of dollars. American secret service men discovered that this money had been given him by the German Government, and that his credit at one time went as high as thirty millions of dollars.

It was believed that Rintelen came to America via Spain. Soon afterwards there arrived, also from Spain, Victor Huerta, former Dictator of Mexico, who had fled to Spain when the Americans occupied Vera Cruz in 1914. Huerta began to have secret conferences with Rintelen and Captain von Papen, the German military attache, who was afterwards sent out of the United States at the request of the President. Finally, a German proposition was submitted to Huerta at a conference at a Fifth Avenue hotel, at which several well-known Mexicans were present. Huerta received it kindly. Shortly afterwards he announced that he would make his home in New York, and he rented a house at Long Island. This was only a blind. A few days later he moved to his Long Island home—and disappeared.

The American secret service men found him in Missouri, speeding on a limited train for El Paso, Texas, where he was to be joined by confederates, and slip across the border near Juarez. Here, he was to start a new revolution, the purpose of which was to bring on a war between the United States and Mexico. The German had promised Huerta 10,000 rifles, a huge amount of ammunition, and a first credit of about £2,000,000 to finance the enterprise. Huerta was placed under arrest, and it is believed that he died in the gaol at San Antonio without making a confession of his share in the German plots—but there is no definite information on this point.

Rintelen had done a great amount of work in endeavouring to stir up embarrassment for the munition manufacturers; but with his Mexican—and principal—plot destroyed, and with a growing amount of startling information in the hands of the secret service men, who were now most assiduously on his trail, he decided to flee. He got away on a Holland-American steamer, in December, 1915, on a fraudulent Swiss passport, but he was subsequently arrested by the British when the ship was under examination. He was placed in a British prison, and was subsequently sent to America for trial.

VITAL STATISTICS FOR APRIL.

After making due allowances for the increase in population, the number of births in the metropolitan area for April last are shown as 1572, compared with an average of 1756 for the month of April for the previous five years. The deaths (583), however, compare more favourably, the five years' average being 637. Of the total births, 788 were of males and 782 of females. The rate, 24.66 per 1000 of population per annum, is 10.5 per cent. below the average of the previous five years. The illegitimate birth-rate is 30 per cent. below the average of the previous five years. There were 294 births, or 19 per cent. of the total, in hospitals and in other public institutions. Of the total deaths, 332 were of males and 251 of females. The mortality rate, 9.14 per 1000 of population per annum, is very satisfactory, being 2.6 per cent. below the average of the previous five years. The deaths were below the average in all age-groups except 65 and over. The infantile mortality is 53.4 per 1000 births, and is remarkably low, being 28 per cent. below the average for April of the previous five years. Among the very old persons who died, two were aged 93 and one 94 years. Of the total deaths, 258, or 44 per cent., occurred in hospitals and in other public institutions.

ATLANTIC YACHT CLUB'S COMMODORE.

Information received from New York states that Mr. Edward F. Luckenbach, the head of the Luckenbach fleet of American ships, was recently elected commodore of the Atlantic Yacht Club, at the annual meeting of the club held at the Waldorf Astoria Hotel, at New York. At the same meeting the names of Emperor Wilhelm of Germany and Prince Henry of Prussia were removed from the list of honorary members.

NAVAL BASE STRIKE.

PERTH, Monday.

The Cockburn Sound Naval Base strike has entered upon a new phase. The secretary of the Harbour and River Union states that the union has informed the Naval Board it is prepared to supply all sea plant, with masters and mates, with steam craft, to carry on the work, since, owing to the strike of the Merchant Service Guild, members of his union have been compulsorily idle for some time.

OCTOGENARIAN'S INVENTION.

Although in his 85th year, Mr. J. J. Cooper, of Bourke-street, Darlinghurst, has been applying himself assiduously during the last few years to the invention of a little piece of hydraulic mechanism designed as a self-acting boat propeller. Mr. Cooper has constructed only a rough model of the device, but he hopes to interest the engineering faculty in it, and time make it possible to construct a model which will permit of a practical demonstration. Mr. Cooper, who is an old seaman, has received from the secretary of the Prime Minister a letter suggesting that he should submit his ideas to the Director of Munitions. His aim has been to evolve a machine that will work without fuel, battery, or combustibles, and he hopes later to be able to demonstrate what he regards as its efficiency. Mr. Cooper sees in the machine, apart from what he claims to be its commercial value, a device for guarding against the submarine, because of the absence of smoke and funnels in the case of boats propelled by his hydraulic contrivance.

WAR NOTES.

RECOVERING LOST GROUND.

Sir Douglas Haig in his Sunday midnight report announced an important gain on the left of the sector occupied by the Australian troops. Here an additional section of the Hindenburg line has been captured along a front of over a mile. This gain has been made between the villages of Bullecourt and Fontaine-lez-Croisilles, the latter village being about two miles north-north-west of Bullecourt. The advance has probably not penetrated to any great depth, which is no doubt explained by the fact that the British troops are here hammering against strong German defensive positions. This should bring home to us the importance of the Australian attack in this region on April 11 last, when our men penetrated to the villages of Riencourt and Hendecourt, and were actually 2000 yards beyond the Hindenburg line. For some reason that has never been clearly explained, they were unable to retain this remarkable advantage, and were driven out of these two villages and back through Bullecourt. Either the necessary support was not forthcoming on that occasion, or the advance at other points along the line did not work out according to programme. Unfortunately, recent casualty lists seem to have confirmed the statement made in these notes at the time of the attack regarding the price which had been paid for this temporary occupation of Riencourt, Hendecourt, and Bullecourt. Bullecourt has since been retaken by the British, but we have seen what fierce fighting its recapture entailed. The way to Hendecourt and Riencourt is still barred, although the Australians entered both villages "as ordered" and "in accordance with the plan" over a month ago.

AUSTRALIAN POSITION STRONGER.

Since the work has to be done again, our main consideration is that it shall now be carried out effectively, and this is what the British troops appear to be doing at the present time. Hendecourt and Riencourt will no doubt be reached in good time, and the Australians will in all probability re-enter the latter village, which is apparently immediately in front of their peculiar salient eastward of Bullecourt. The latest drive into the Hindenburg line on the northern side of Bullecourt must have the effect of further improving the strength of the Australian position to the eastward of the village. This wedge which the Australians drove into the Hindenburg line on the occasion of their second advance towards Riencourt caused no more than a slight crack in the enemy's defensive line. Past experience has shown that it would be hopeless to attempt to break through the enemy's defence on such a narrow front as that occupied by the Australians at this point. If the crack in the enemy's line is to become serious it must be widened, and this is what the British troops to the left of the Australians are doing now. But while they increase the front of their drive into the enemy's line, they also strengthen the Australian front. The relief which the recapture of Bullecourt recently afforded the Australians in this region has therefore been extended, and the hopes which the enemy undoubtedly entertained of smashing up this seemingly impossible Australian position to the eastward of the village now appear to have been dispelled.

THE FLOODED OISE VALLEY.

The Paris correspondent of the "Daily Chronicle" sends an interesting message to his paper explaining the comparative inactivity of the French forces between St. Quentin and the point of the big bend in the Western line to the south-west of Laon. The flooding of the Oise Valley would, of course, seriously hinder the progress of the French armies on the section of front referred to. That the enemy had adopted this precautionary measure was, however, plain to most people, as the French previously informed us that they could have occupied the town of La Fere, but refrained from doing so as the enemy had flooded it before leaving. La Fere lies right down on the valley floor of the Oise, and is, in fact, completely surrounded by the waters of that river, which is here extensively canalized. Below La Fere the Oise winds its way to the south-westward in a series of twists and turns which reminds one of the course followed by the Tigris in Mesopotamia. For some seven or eight miles between La Fere and Chauny it passes down a wide valley with stretches of marsh on either bank. With the aid of the numerous locks near La Fere the enemy would experience no great difficulty in flooding this broad marshy valley. The effect would be to cause an awkward gap in the French line. The troops on the northern side of the river east of Tergnier, would find a difficulty in keeping in touch with those on the northern edge of the St. Gobain plateau, southward of the flooded area. The difficulties which would be encountered in attempting a concerted advance under these conditions can be readily realised. At the same time the strength of the enemy's positions on the St. Gobain Massif has doubtless also had much to do with the French inactivity on the southern side of the Oise.

ITALY'S WAR INDUSTRIES.

The official announcement which was published yesterday, to the effect that British heavy artillery was co-operating in the Italian offensive on the Julian front, was an indication of the manner in which the Allies are now pooling their resources. Heavy artillery has been the greatest need of all the belligerents, and even with her present large output of guns and munitions it is doubtful whether the British on the Western front could ever possess too many of these valuable weapons. Italy has suffered from a scarcity of heavy artillery before, but when we realise her weakness as an industrial nation in pre-war days it must be admitted that she has managed with less assistance from her Allies than might at first have been considered necessary. In an article entitled "Italy's Industrial Effort," appearing in "Land and Water" of March 8, Mr. Lewis R. Freeman relates an interview on this subject which he had in Italy with an officer attached to one of the allied military missions. "The magnitude of Italy's industrial achievement," said this officer, "may best be judged after first considering the fact that she started with almost negligible munition-making facilities, and then noting the extent to which, in the face of a consumption that is doubling and trebling every few months, she has not only become independent of import, but has even been turning out in certain lines a surplus to send abroad to various of her Allies. In the early months of the war France and England had come to Italy's aid with heavy artillery (though it was little enough that could be spared), with machine-guns, and with munitions of practically every class. Munition machinery was, of course, badly needed, but neither of her nearest Allies was able to spare much in this line for Italy. For some time now this country has been turning out all the light artillery and machine guns she has needed, and if there has been a comparative shortage of heavy guns that is only a difficulty that is shared by every other one of the belligerents on both sides. In the smaller calibre of shells she is also independent of import, and recently, indeed, she has begun to put a surplus at the disposal of her Allies. The small arm problem Italy has had fairly well in hand from the first, and she has been exporting these in increasing quantities for some time. . . . All of this, it should be borne in mind, has been accomplished in the face of the handicap imposed by the fact that Italy, unlike France and England, has been able to import but little, and has, therefore, had to make practically all of the special machinery used in munition manufacture. What Italy has done in this connection must rank as one of the most surprising achievements of the war." While, therefore, Italy is helping herself and her Allies wherever possible, Great Britain is strengthening her at her weakest point, and the modern heavy British artillery on the Julian front should play no small part in the advances which it is hoped Italy will make during the present year.

LATE WAR NEWS.

FRENCH AND GERMAN DESTROYERS.

ACTION OFF DUNKIRK.

LONDON, May 21.

A French naval communique states:—

On the morning of the 20th inst. a patrol of four French torpedo boat destroyers encountered a flotilla of German destroyers making towards Dunkirk. After a short engagement the enemy steamed off at high speed towards their base. A French torpedo boat destroyer was damaged.

A German official version of the action claims that the German vessels were not damaged, while the French vessels were repeatedly hit.

WESTERN BATTLE.

LONDON, May 21.

The prisoners recently taken on the West front include ex-convicts who have been released after long terms of imprisonment in order to fight. There is considerable rivalry among the British corps as to which shall secure the most prisoners. The Canadians were the first to reach 5000, but a neighbouring mixed English and Scottish corps has now a short lead. Already two German divisions have been cut to pieces around Bullecourt.

The British and Australian success has resulted in a curious situation here. We have cut into the Hindenburg line around Bullecourt, and have eaten off the end towards Arras, so that the enemy is left with an "island" section of four miles between our two forces. This the Germans have been ordered to hold to the death, in a special order, which says that they might "rely with absolute certainty on being rescued, as the Germans are much stronger than the British in attack."

FRENCH HONOURS TO ANZACS.

President Poincare of France has awarded the following honours.

CHEVALIERS CROSS OF THE LEGION OF HONOUR.

Major Bruxner (Australian Light Horse). Major Whitehorn (Auckland Mounted Rifles)

WAR CROSS.

Lieutenant Archie Cambell (late of the Australian Light Horse). Lieutenant-Colonel Lachlan Wilson, Major Thomas Irwin, Corporal Mowbray (Australian Light Horse), Sergeant George Hay (Australian force), Corporal J. Powell (Wellington Mounted Rifles)

MILITARY MEDALS.

Sergeant-Major Hancock Sergeant E. T Roberts (Australian Light Horse), Sergeant J. Simpkins (Auckland Mounted Rifles) Trooper Trott (Wellington Mounted Rifles)

BELGIAN RELIEF.

The National Committee for the Relief of Belgium announces the suspension of its appeals to the public of the British Empire the American Government having assumed all financial responsibility for the work of the relief commission.

IMPERIAL CONFERENCE.

Mr. Lewis Harcourt, M.P., in a letter to a correspondent, warmly approves of the proposed annual meeting of the Imperial Conference. He claims that this is practically identical with the proposals made to the dominion Governments in 1912. It may still be found that the annual attendance of the Prime Ministers of such distant dominions as Australia and New Zealand is not convenient, and it is possible that continuous representation by another Minister, duly accredited, would meet the difficulty.

LABOUR DIFFICULTY.

The newspapers express satisfaction at the conclusion of the munitioners' strike. It is understood that all prosecutions have been stopped, though this is not officially announced. Some districts are threatening to re start the strike unless the leaders are fully acquitted.

APOSTOLIC DELEGATE

MONSIGNOR CATTANEO FOR AUSTRALIA.

ROME, May 20.

The Pope has appointed Monsignor Cattaneo to be Apostolic Delegate for Australia, in succession to Archbishop Cerretti.

THE NEW DELEGATE.

Monsignor Bartolomeo Cattaneo, who has been appointed Apostolic Delegate to Australia in succession to Monsignor Cerretti, is about 56 years of age, and was born near Milan. He is said to be a good English, French, and German linguist, and to be well travelled, having visited America and other countries in the service of the Church.

Archbishop Bonzano, now Papal Delegate at Washington, was predecessor of Cattaneo's immediate predecessor at the College of Propaganda in Rome. Archbishop Bonzano was rector from 1904 until his appointment to the United States in 1911. Archbishop Cerretti was associated with Archbishop Bonzano in the Delegation at Washington from 1911 until his departure for Sydney in 1914. The Rev. Father McEvoy, who arrived recently for the Diocese of Lismore, studied under Monsignor Cattaneo in Rome.

WAR PROBLEMS.

MR. GLYNN'S VIEWS.

ADELAIDE, Monday.

Several matters affecting imperial and Federal affairs were touched upon to-day by the Minister for Home Affairs and Territories (Mr. Glynn), prior to his returning to Melbourne. The disposal of Australian products was, he said, a question of vital interest, and had received the attention of the Government. It was possible, he explained, that an announcement would soon be made as to the Government's intentions with regard to the storage and transport of wheat. There was never a time when the management of the finances required more care than at present, both in Federal and State Parliaments. Already there had been a serious fall in the Customs revenue. That, of course, was inevitable, in view of the war having so interfered with the course of trade. Each year brought a heavier annual expenditure as the result of such conditions. Fortunately good seasons had been experienced, but those in charge of affairs must make the very best use of them.

The position in Australia and other parts of the Empire required care, but there was no reason for despondency. The submarine menace was gradually being checkmated by the Admiralty, although, as Sir Edward Carson had pointed out, nearly half a million tons of shipping was sunk in February. However, he felt certain that the enormous rate of wastage would gradually diminish. They must not underestimate the tremendous amount of work which was done and still had to be done by the navy.

Mr. Glynn added that he had investigated the outbye on the Federal capital.

SETTLING RETURNED SOLDIERS.

MELBOURNE, Monday.

The Returned Soldiers Land Settlement Bill is promised at an early stage of the coming session of the State Parliament. The Premier, Sir Alex. Peacock, stated to-day that the new bill would embody the general principle adopted at the last Premiers' conference.

RECRUITING.

MR. COOK'S APPEAL.

As the principal speaker at the recruiting rally in Martin-place yesterday, the Minister for the Navy (Mr. Cook) empassised the gravity of the present position.

Russia's sword arm, he said, was practically paralyzed for the time being, and at the moment it looked as though Russia would be out of the war for the rest of the summer. But was the war to stand still because that country, through internal troubles and upheavals, was practically out of it? The objective of the Germans was not Russia, but Great Britain, and it mattered not whether Russia was in the war or out of it, they had to put every ounce of their strength into the struggle, in which they saw involved all that they held dear—their liberties, their freedom, their traditions, and their best racial instincts. The fact that Russia was out laid upon the other Allies a greater burden. They were in the war either to beat Germany or to be beaten, and it would be to their shame if Australia, as an integral part of the British Empire, did not, in order to help to beat Germany and all her devilish acts, prosecute the war by every available means.

As showing that England is not unmindful of the gravity of the position, Mr. Cook instanced the combing-out of all eligibles in the old country, the raising of the age limit, and all the other efforts being put forth in order to reinforce those engaged in the present big push. "The times," urged Mr. Cook, "are unquestionably serious, and we do not get used to the war in the sense of becoming deadly indifferent to it. It will take the Empire and our Allies all they know to pull through. What would happen to Australia if we lost the war? Our economic conditions go, for instance, and I tell the working men that this Empire, with all our grumbling given in, is the best Empire in the world. The lot of the working man in Australia is easily better than anywhere else in the world. But all these happy conditions are in peril. People who preach the pernicious doctrine that it does not matter to the working men under which flag he lives and works, do not fully understand the import of their words; and those who are able to fight for their country at this critical hour and do not do so, should quit it, and live under these other flags." (Applause.)

As illustrating the seriousness of the position Mr. Cook cited also the position in Canada. "That country," he said, "is breaking herself to compulsion. They have it almost everywhere else. Australia, in fact, is about the only place left which is depending wholly upon the voluntary system. You have been told that someone is going to sneak conscription in behind your backs. Well, I am not going to do so, and I ask you, for your country's sake, for your safety, to enlist voluntarily. If you will not let the Government conscript you, then, in Heaven's name, and in your own highest interests, conscript yourselves and join your fellow-men at the front." (Applause.)

Addressing himself to those who say that they will fight within their own shores if needs be for the defence of Australia, but will not go overseas, the Minister for the Navy spoke of what the Motherland had done for Australia. "Her mighty fleet," he said, "has protected us for 100 years. Her protection has enabled us to build up the wonderful civilisation which Australia is. For 20 years more than two-thirds of British taxation has been so much for Australia as for Great Britain. Here, again, in Australia is the richest piece of earth that any country ever bestowed upon a people. It is a great gift from the Motherland. It has been given to us unconditionally, and as free self-governors to boot, to control it as we wish. It was given to us not for England's immediate benefit as is the case with Germany and her colonies. Immediately Germany's colonies become prosperous they are exploited, and the wealth is drained to the centre of the German Empire. The wealth we make is, on the contrary, our own, to adjust and distribute as we deem proper. Is it not up to us at this crucial hour to help an Empire which has done so much for us? I tell the people, Australia is in danger just as much as if the guns were thundering at our Heads."

Mr. Cook said that only the necessary reinforcements could give those who had been at the front so long the rest that they needed. In strong, resonant notes, he concluded by appealing to the eligible men to realise their responsibilities. He exhorted them to stand shoulder-to-shoulder to their duty, and not let it be said that lives of brave men were lost because of a lack of patriotism on their part. Would they fail in their duty in the gravest crisis in the world's history? They were fighting for those peerless liberties that they had always enjoyed. (Applause.)

Amongst the other speakers were Miss Evelyn Holt and Professor MacIntyre, chairman of the State Recruiting Committee.

MORE "SPORTS" WANTED.

A few weeks ago when the organisers of the "Sportsmen's Reinforcement Unit" commenced operations to build the unit up to full strength they little thought that the response would be answered so well, but their most sanguine expectations were reached and passed, with the result that more than the required complement was obtained. The total in excess of the required 150 for the first unit were at once passed over to other officers, and a second unit came into existence. Now it is necessary to build this unit up to full strength, and the organisers are busy appealing to men, sportsmen particularly, to enlist in the unit. Lieutenant D. M. Forsythe, who is well known in New Zealand, Victorian, and New South Wales legal and sporting circles, and Lieutenant Norm. M'Gibbon, who is also well known in legal and local swimming quarters, are organising this new unit. Both are returned wounded officers, and have a thorough knowledge of war conditions. Men enlisting in this unit will be drilled and prepared under their personal supervision, and when the time comes for them to go away, they will all go together. The cyclists, the footballers, and other athletic bodies have raised whole units from their ranks, but this appeal is to all kinds of "sports." The organisers want to beat the proud record held by Lieutenants Seaborn and Diamond who secured 72 recruits in half an hour at the Stadium on May 4.

WHAT COWRA HAS DONE.

COWRA, Monday.

At the Presbyterian Church yesterday, in the presence of a large gathering, representing all denominations, the Rev. James Barr unveiled a roll of honour, containing the names of eighty members of the congregation who have enlisted in the Expeditionary Forces since the outbreak of war. Among the number are some who have been killed in the service of the Empire. Others received a baptism of fire at Gallipoli, and are now in France, whilst many are reported missing as a result of the recent offensive on the Western frontier. Over 450 from the town and district have been accepted for service abroad, and the majority have been in the firing line.

TO-DAY'S MEETINGS.

Enfield.—Ireland's corner, 8 p.m. Mrs. W. T. Lee, Sergt. Cathcart.

Haberfield.—Dalhousie-street, 8 p.m. Miss Owen, Sergt. Saunders, Sergt. G. Salisbury.

Croydon, near station, 8 p.m.—Sergt.-major Donald, Corpl. M'Namara, Gunner L. Jamison, Mrs. Graham.

Hughes's Woolwash, noon.—Sergt. Saunders, Sapper J. Lucas.

MELBOURNE, Monday.

In the recruiting in Victoria to-day, 79 men volunteered, and 29 were accepted.

BRISBANE, Monday.

In the Brisbane recruiting to-day, 25 volunteered, and 14 were accepted.

PRIME MINISTER AT BENDIGO.

MELBOURNE, Monday.

The Prime Minister (Mr. Hughes), who defeated Mr. A. J. Hampson in the contest for the Bendigo seat in the House of Representatives, returned to Bendigo to-day for the first time since the elections. It was expected that the returning officer would announce the result of the poll, and formally declare Mr Hughes selected, but this step will not be taken for perhaps three weeks, owing to the delay in counting the soldiers' votes. The visit to-day was more in the nature of a reunion. It is now certain that Mr Hughes

ARCHBISHOP CERRETTI.

CITIZENS' FAREWELL DINNER.

Last night the vestibule of the Town Hall was lavishly decorated for the citizens' farewell dinner to Archbishop Cerretti, who for the past two years has been the Papal Delegate in this part of the world, and who is leaving to take up an important position at the Vatican under the Cardinal Secretary of State. The flags of Italy was draped under the portrait of Queen Victoria, and the Union Jack, the Australian Commonwealth flag, and the flags of France and the United States were hung from the windows. A small orchestra played overhead in the aldermen's room. A message from the Prime Minister was read, in which Mr. Hughes expressed his regret that an important engagement in Bendigo prevented him from taking part in the tribute.

The Lord Mayor (Alderman R. D. Meagher) presided in his official robes, having on his right Archbishop Cerretti, Mr. George Fuller (Acting Premier), Archbishop Duhig (Brisbane), Mr. John Garland, M.L.C. (Solicitor-General), Sir Thomas Hughes, M.L.C., Dr. Marano (Consul for Italy), Mr. Y. G. Lindeman (representing the general manager, Commercial Bank), and Monsignor Ormond (secretary to Archbishop Cerretti), on his left Archbishop Kelly, Mr. J. D. Fitzgerald, M.L.C. (Minister for Health and Local Government), Archbishop Redwood (Wellington, New Zealand), Bishop O'Connor (Armidale), Mr. Denison Miller (general manager Commonwealth Bank), Monsignor O'Haran, Judge Murray, and Mr. John Meagher, M.L.C. Among others present were: Mr. A. A. C. Cocks, M.L.C., Dr. Nash, M.L.C., Mr. L. F. Heydon, M.L.C., Mr. P. McGarry, Mr. C. C. Lazzarini, M.L.A., Mr. James Mitchell, Inspector-General of Police, Mr. R. W. Richards (ex-Lord Mayor), Mr. J. L. Mullins, Mr. T. J. Dalton, Captain F. Labrano, Mr. P. S. Creary, Mr. W. G. Layton, Alderman Farrell, Alderman English, and a number of Italian citizens.

There was an outburst of applause when Mr. M. Carrick, as toast master, asked the company to fill their glasses for the toast of "His Majesty the King," which was proposed by the Lord Mayor. All present joined in the singing of the National Anthem.

The Lord Mayor, in proposing "Our Guest," said that the appointment of an Apostolic Delegate was a great compliment to the Commonwealth of Australia. The compliment was intensified when they found this important mission was to be discharged by so learned and distinguished an ecclesiastic, by so cultured a man of affairs, with wide experience and matured judgment, coming to them in the noontide of his physical and mental vigour. (Applause.) Their distinguished guest, coming to Australia after a sojourn in the United States, had had some opportunity of studying their institutions. By many thinkers, Australia was placed in the vanguard of progress, inasmuch as it is the laboratory where economic and social problems are in process of solution, the adoption of which, by older lands, tends to the benefit of humanity. They felt that so distinguished an observer as their guest would be magnanimous to their shortcomings, charitable to their imperfections. (Hear, hear.) The celebrated novelist, Anthony Trollope, very many years ago, on his visit to Australia, considered it characteristic of Australians that they were "hewers-of-wood-and-drawers-of-water-for-the-lands." The novelist would modify that opinion to-day, in view of the lads who scaled Gallipoli, who swept the flower of the Prussian guards out of Pozieres and Lagnicourt, and who chewed that important piece out of the Hindenburg line at Bullecourt. (Applause.) Knowing that the place of publicity and the limelight of laudation were not congenial to their departing guest, it was with diffidence that he (the speaker) referred to his distinguished career.

Archbishop Cerretti had drawn to him all classes and all ages by a singular charm of manner, by the sunshine of a magnetic and lovable personality. (Applause.) In this wide democracy the unconventional Australian, without depreciating the dignity of a high ecclesiastical office, felt that in their guest he had a warm sympathiser, whose big heart was with them. The high esteem in the Vatican to which the Archbishop had been appointed was a high tribute to his great intellectual gifts. There he would be in touch with all nations on the face of the globe, and his reluctance to accept the position was a convincing manifestation of his affection for Australia. (Hear, hear and applause.) The true happiness of a nation was its social harmony and spirit of broad toleration, and the presence of an intellectual, big and strong man, with broad judgment, was an invaluable asset not only to his own denomination but to the Commonwealth as a whole. (Cheers.) The Lord Mayor concluded: "In these sad and bloody days on this war-weary world, with its dangers of the air, on land and under the sea, by night and by day, may I, on your behalf, assure our distinguished friend of our best wishes for a safe voyage, that he may return to the bosom of the sunny land that claims so illustrious a son, and may we hope that he will in his high centre of activity, the Eternal City, in his communication with the lands that are washed by the Pacific Ocean, round which are gathered more than one-third of the human race, gathered more than one-third of the human race, cherish pleasant memories of the days of his sojourn beneath the Southern Cross. (Enthusiastic cheering.)

Mr. Fuller, in supporting the toast, congratulated their guest upon the appointment, to all which he was now leaving for Rome. At the same time he sympathised with those who would be losing Archbishop Cerretti's services in Australia. When the Archbishop arrived in Sydney he was welcomed not only as a distinguished ecclesiastic, but as a representative of their Italian allies. (Applause.) To-day the Italians were fighting, showing themselves just as brave and just as earnest as the British, the French, and the Australians in their self-sacrificing determination to break down the military tyranny of Germany. (Applause.) On his return to Italy, Archbishop Cerretti would be able to attest that there was no country more democratic, no country more tolerant in religious matters than Australia. (Applause.) The Papal Delegate would carry with him the goodwill of all, and the highest appreciation of the services he had rendered to Australia. (Cheers.)

Archbishop Kelly said that the Apostolic Delegate would depart with the sense of having succeeded, and succeeded admirably, in Australia. (Applause.) Archbishop Cerretti would now be able to work near the Chair of Peter for the improvement of humanity and for the betterment of the democracy of which he had had so much experience in the United States and in the Commonwealth. (Applause.)

Archbishop Cerretti, who was cheered on rising, after expressing his gratification and his gratitude, said that he had already received many kindnesses in nearly every part of the Commonwealth. . . . Departing now from that fair land in obedience to the voice of authority, he felt that he was leaving behind a legion of friends among all classes of the community. (Cheers.) The late Pope Pius X. had spoken to him of a great nation which was being fashioned in the southern seas. He (the speaker) was sure the Australian people would fulfil the destiny which was marked out for this land. (Applause.) For his own part, his regret at leaving was tempered by the knowledge that in his new office he would be able to attend to ecclesiastical and other matters in which Australians were deeply interested. (Applause.) As they were aware, the Holy Father had made it his care to see that the graves of the soldiers who had fallen were respected and preserved. It would be part of the work of his (the Archbishop's) department to look after the graves of the Anzacs —the graves of the Anzacs who had written their first glorious page in the new era of Australia. (Enthusiastic cheering.) He was leaving Australia just when he had learnt to know the country and to love it. (Cheers.) When he was thousands of miles away he would follow the fortunes of the Commonwealth, and would rejoice in every new achievement of the Australian people. (Cheers.) He hoped while in Rome to renew many of the friendships he had formed in Australia, and he could assure them that every Australian, no matter to what creed or political party he belonged, would be warmly welcomed by him. (Cheers.)

The only other toast was "The Chairman," proposed by Archbishop Cerretti.

The Lord Mayor announced that an illuminated address, which was now being prepared, would be sent to Archbishop Cerretti in Rome.

TAKING OVER LUTHERAN SCHOOLS.

ADELAIDE, Monday.

The State Government in Cabinet to-day decided to give notice to Lutheran schools of its intention to take them over after June 30. There are 43 Lutheran schools known to the Government. Six already closed have been provided for, and many can be absorbed as Public schools, while for the others special provision will have to be made.

A COSTLY SANATORIUM.

PERTH, Sunday.

The Wooroloo Consumptive Sanatorium, commenced in 1914, was to have been built by the Public Works Department for £71,000. The Minister for Works now states that the cost has been £140,000, and from £10,000 to £20,000 will be necessary to complete it. The returns do not enable the Minister to arrive at the individual costs in any branch of the work, but on account for the extraordinary expenditure the department's estimate was £30,000 outlay.

FEDERAL SESSION.

MELBOURNE, Monday.

When the House of Representatives meets on June 14, interest will centre in the election of a new Speaker. It is improbable that the caucus party will submit the name of Mr. M'Donald, who was Speaker of the last Parliament, as the ranks of the Opposition have been shattered so badly that they will require all their members to present a respectable numerical showing on the floor of the House. In any event, the Ministerial party will follow the practice now well established in the House of Representatives by Labour precedent, of nominating one of its members for the position.

When the Liberal party was returned with a majority of one in 1917, Mr. Bruce Smith, member for Parkes (N.S.W.) since the first Federal Parliament, was offered the Speakership, but he, declined the honour. It is generally understood, however, that he has intimated privately that this will be the last occasion on which he will submit himself as a candidate for the House of Representatives. It may be, therefore, that his inclinations will be in the direction of closing a long Parliamentary career by filling the chair for the term of the Parliament.

As Chairman of Committees, Mr. Chanter had experience in the first Parliament, and during the last Parliament, owing to the illhealth of Mr. M'Donald, the Speaker, in addition to discharging the duties of Chairman of Committees, Mr. Chanter was the Deputy Speaker during many of the sittings. If he aspires to the higher post, Mr. Chanter will have many supporters. Should Mr. Chanter be selected for the Speakership, the choice of a Chairmanship of Committees will probably rest between Mr. Bamford and Mr. Johnson.

WEEK OF PRAYER.

The Empire's call to prayer, organised by the League of Honour, was begun for the week by a service conducted by Miss Reid at the Y.W.C.A. Hall, Castlereagh-street. Miss Reid (who was assisted as reader by Miss Everard) took for her topic the passage in Exodus, chapter 17, verses 10 to 16, dealing with the upholding of Joshua's arms as he prayed, urging from this example the value of intercessory prayer after the confession of sin.

Yesterday a service at St. Mark's, Darling Point, on the subject of consecration, was conducted by the Rev. Howard Lee. To-day, from 1 to 2 p.m., an intercessory service will be held at Pitt-street Congregational Church. To-morrow evening, at 8, the Rev. P. A. Micklem will give an address at the service to be held at St. James', King-street. On Thursday (Empire Day) there will be a continuous service at the Y.W.C.A. Hall, the various religious organisations of women taking turns from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. On Saturday the secondary school girls are to be drawn into the Empire-wide circle at a special service for them at 163 Castlereagh-street.

A remarkable feature of the week is the co-operation of the Jewish Church. Rabbi Francis Cohen having arranged to hold a special meeting at the Synagogue next Sunday.

Miss Fowler, the secretary of the movement, reports that the response from ministers of nearly all denominations has been most gratifying. The churches are eager to join in the week of prayer, and besides the large city meetings, there will be services in the suburbs as well. The secondary girls' schools have also shown themselves, through their heads, more than willing to take part.

The Primate, Dr. J. C. Wright, Dean Talbot, the Bishops of Bathurst and Armidale, and representative ministers of the Presbyterian, Methodist, and Congregational bodies have corresponded with Miss Fowler, assuring the Australasian League of Honour of their strong support.

In Great Britain there are over half a million members of the league, which also boasts of many adherents in the other portions of the Empire. At 12 noon each league member thinks of the soldiers, and letters have been received from boys at the front saying how much they value the prayerful thought and they receive the wish. They also very much appreciated the booklets issued by the league for the week last year, and this year large numbers of their "Week of Prayer" booklets were sent to France and Egypt.

NEW SOUTH WALES ALLIANCE.

The thirty-fourth annual business meeting of the New South Wales Alliance was held yesterday afternoon. The president (the Rev. R. B. Hammond) was in the chair. There was a good attendance.

After the opening prayer the presidential address was given. Mr. Hammond, in a wonderfully energetic discourse, spoke of the crusade against alcohol and the influence of the evil on the social life of the nation. He laid stress on the fact that many professing men had, through the influence of the alliance, been brought round to its way of thinking, and he added that in the hospitals and elsewhere the use of alcohol had been largely curtailed. The ground gained during the past year in moral and physical efficiency was worthy of note. He was proud to be the leader of a loyal force of such men and women who had gathered under the alliance banner and who had helped to such results as were at present apparent. He hoped, however, to see still greater reforms in the future, and trusted that the workers would overcome the prejudice which existed in so many ranks of society. There were still many sections to reform, and plenty of work for the labourers in the great cause. The two outstanding features of the year's efforts were the overwhelming six o'clock closing victory, and the return to the State Parliament of men sympathetic to the platform in greater numbers than ever. Another important event in the history of temperance reform was the formation of the Australian Alliance Prohibition Council, whose object was to obtain prohibition for the whole Commonwealth.

The annual report showed much that was of interest, prominence, naturally, being given to the recent victory. The work of prohibition in the United States, in Russia, and elsewhere was also dealt with in detail. Throughout the year the alliance had resolutely opposed applications for new licenses. The council was greatly encouraged by the year's achievements, but recognised the strength of its opponents, and regarded as an essential part of its work for the coming year that of educating public opinion on the whole liquor question.

The annual report and balance-sheet were received and adopted, the mover being Mr. W. Winn. It was also moved that Archdeacon Boyce be patron of the alliance, with a seat on the New South Wales Council. The meeting placed on record its keen appreciation of the services rendered during the past year by Mr. W. Clegg (hon. solicitor) and Messrs. Walker and Kerr (hon. auditors).

The office-bearers elected were as follow:—President, Rev. R. B. S. Hammond, vice-presidents, Messrs. W. C. Clegg, B.A., LL.B., H. G. Harward, and William Winn; hon. treasurer, Mr. F. H. Molesworth; State council, Rev. D. F. Brandt, Mr. G. E. Bodley, Rev. James Buchan, Rev. G. Cranston, Mr. W. D. B. Creagh, Rev. Thos. Davies, Rev. S. J. Hoban, Mr. Geo. Fitzpatrick, Mrs. Laverty, Mr. G. Lewis, Mrs. P. Miller, Mr. W. B. Ogden, Mr. A. B. Pursell, Mrs. Strang, Mrs. Stupart, Mrs. Courtenay Smith, Mr. C. Toms, Mr. S. E. Vickery, Ald. W. J. Walker, and Rev. A. A. Yeates.

In the evening the annual representative conference and workers' convention was held at the City Temple, Campbell-street. The subject under discussion was "What we want from the New Parliament, and How to Get It." The president was again in the chair, and introduced the speakers.

Mr. Wm. Clegg, in opening the discussion, thought that those who had made "Win the War" their policy should act up to their principles. He averred that the 6 o'clock closing had not really stopped the drink traffic, and that the temperance party suffered through the leniency of those who administered the law, Clegg, as the prosecuting of offenders was concerned. Parliament should see that breakers of the law were more severely dealt with.

Several resolutions were carried: one of the most important being as follows:—"That branches be formed in every electorate for the purpose of furthering the objects of the Alliance."

RETURNED SOLDIER'S DEATH.

At the City Coroner's Court yesterday, an inquest was held concerning the death of Donald Jones, a returned soldier, who was found dead recently in the University grounds with a bullet wound over the heart.

Deceased left a letter, in which he stated that his nerves were shattered, and that he was unwell. His wife was unable to bear the strain of a melancholy husband on her hands, and he appealed to the charity of the Sydney people to care for her and his children. "My conduct all through life," the letter continued, "has been, according to my idea, in accordance with duty. At the front I did my bit. Brigade—for the last and eventful days there—on the final night, amongst the selected detachments given me for the defence of the final position from the Australian Divisions and the N.Z. A. Division. I was very glad to have "Chap" close to me in what was expected to be a warm corner, but brother Turk did not suspect our departure, so there was no close fighting. It was a great pleasure to be able to include "Chap's" name in the list they asked me for, especially as he had done such good work in Rabaul.

Yours very sincerely,

J. PATON, Col. (now Brigadier-Gen.),
Commanding 7th Infantry Brigade.

I am, etc.,

ELLIS C. KIRKE.

MELBOURNE, Monday.

Private Harry Bolt has been killed. He was the brother of Mr. Wally Bolt, of Lithgow, and a plumber in that town until he enlisted two years ago. He was 25 years of age. He had previously been wounded in the thigh whilst carrying out duties as a stretcher-bearer, but on Wednesday last week word was received that he had gone back to the front.

Gunner C. R. Hampson, grandson of Mrs. D. Hampson, of Hassan's Wall-road, Lithgow, was killed in action on April 28. Young Hampson, who was 19 years of age, enlisted with his father, L. Hampson, during the march of the "Coo-ees," two years ago. He previously worked at the Small Arms Factory. He was a native of Sydney, but had been a resident of Lithgow for several years prior to enlisting. The father so far has escaped injury.

Corporal Reginald M'Lean has been killed in action. He was the eldest son of Sergeant S. and Mrs. M'Lean, of Emu Plains. At the time of enlisting he was on the staff of the Government Savings Bank, first at Penrith, then at the head office, and afterwards on the relieving staff. He was 21 years old. He enlisted early in 1916, and left Sydney in April, 1916.

DIED OF WOUNDS.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Golden, 235 Harris-street, Pyrmont, have been informed that their son, Private F. A. Golden, aged 18 years, has died of wounds in France. He was won by at Lone Pine, and was at the evacuation, subsequently going to France. He fought at Pozieres and served in the trenches till November last, when he became batman to Major Brown. Later he rejoined his battalion. A brother, Private A. M. Golden, is on active service.

WOUNDED.

Mrs. J. F. Rook, of Darlington, has been informed that her only son, Bomber Hilton Wellington, has been wounded.

MISSING.

Private Arnold Nelson, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Nelson, of Tocumwal, is missing. Private W. Nelson, another son, was killed in action only a few weeks ago.

Private William Dawson is officially reported missing from April 15. He is a son of Mr. and Mrs. G. Dawson, Oakey Park, Lithgow, who have given their only two eligible sons to the colours. His brother, Private James Dawson, lost an arm as a result of wounds.

Mrs. George M'Cormick, of Haighway-avenue, Ashfield, has been informed that Private Robert Wood, of one of the Australian Machine Gun companies, is missing in France. He enlisted at Ballarat, and has had active service with H.M. Forces in China some years ago. He was employed in the Adelaide Steamship Company.

IN HOSPITAL.

Mrs. W. Cawood, of Plimstead, Alt-street, Waverley, has been notified that her husband, Private William Cawood, late of Waverley Tramway Depot, is in hospital suffering from shell shock. His brother, Charlie, is also serving in France.

Mrs. Charles Bull has received notification from the military authorities that her son, Bertie Charles Bull, is ill with severe pneumonia in a London hospital. He is a brother of Rowley Bull, who was killed in action at Vaas Farm, 2½ miles from Bapaume, on February 26 last.

ILL.

Private N. S. Elliott, son of Mr. William Elliott, of Jerilderie, has been admitted to No. 2 Southern General Hospital in England, suffering from trench feet.

RAILWAY EXPENDITURE.

NEWCASTLE, Monday.

"I don't suppose there is any place on the earth where the war is felt less than in New South Wales," said Mr. James Fraser, Chief Commissioner for Railways, in replying to requests made by a deputation from the Mayor and aldermen of the City Council to improve the Newcastle railway station.

During the last 12 months, he added, railway expenditure had been most seriously restricted, and they had been able to do only those things which were of an extremely urgent nature. All duplication money had been spent in those areas where the need was infinitely greater than in the northern area. Duplication had practically ceased in the north for some time past, and he was sure that there would be no improvement for some time to come. In the last half-year the railways had only £500,000, compared with £2,500,000 a year and a half ago. All over the State there were works at the present moment in a state of suspension, and standing that way because there was no money to complete them. The position of the railways as regarded rolling stock was not satisfactory. They had not, during the last two or three years, been able to add to their waggons or carriages, and since the war began, they had not been able to buy new materials for them. The shortage of rolling stock would become very acute in the next two or three years. In New Zealand no recreation trains were running, and no trains were running after 6 p.m.

Regarding the request that sailing vessels and lumbering steamers should be exempted from fines in connection with the shipment of coal during meal hours, Mr. Fraser said that they had to try to get the maximum amount of work done on each shift to prevent the raising of freights generally on the handling of goods. Coal was the only item on the whole list of goods that they carried that did not have an increased load to bear in their recent revision of the rates. Wages boards had increased the wages paid by the railways by about £23,000 a year. While the railways had been extremely kind to the coal industry by not increasing freights on coal, the industry had been most unkind to the railways by putting 3s per ton on to the price they paid for coal. The 23 per cent. increase in the price of coal had meant an additional expenditure to the railways of from £150,000 to £200,000 a year, and that was not known put on the community yet. It now cost them £20,000 a year more than it did two years ago to put the coal aboard the ships at Newcastle.

In regard to the request for a prevention of pilfering that was taking place on the railways, the Chief Commissioner replied that there was now a very marked improvement, due to a special effort made by officers of the department with the assistance of the police.

FALL FROM A TROOP TRAIN.

At an inquest before the Albury District Coroner, Mr. J. Laidlaw, P.M., on Friday, in regard to the death of Michael Cluney, a returned soldier, who recently fell from a troop train near Barnawartha, during the journey from Melbourne to Sydney, some startling facts were revealed in regard to the condition of a large number of the men. The train was composed of about 20 cars, including 40 French troops. Lieutenant Lawrence, in charge of the troops, stated in evidence that many of the men showed signs of drink before they left Spencer-street, and were handed over to him by the officer in control of that branch of the work. They obtained drink during the journey, and, although the conduct of the French Australian troops were in a drunken condition, some of them helpless. It had been found necessary for him to have some of the men removed from the corridors and placed in the carriages.

The coroner, in recording a verdict of accidental death, said that the circumstances elicited furnished very powerful reading. He would send a copy of the depositions to the State Minister for Justice to be handed over to the Minister for Defence. He felt that the circumstances only needed to be brought under the notice of the Federal Minister in order to have steps taken that would make a recurrence of such an accident impossible.

POZIERES RIDGE.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—In your paper of Saturday there appeared a letter headed as above and signed "Jason Neville"—who I think I know what he is writing of. The attached, received by me from Brigadier-General Paton, immediately after the evacuation, I think, will explain the matter. "Chap" alluded to in his letter was my son, the late Major E. W. Kirke, who on that eventful night was in charge of "Pinggers' Plateau" or "Quinn's Post" under Brigadier-General Paton. My youngest son was amongst the last 27 who left at about 2 a.m. or 2 a.m.. My sons were of the 5th Brigade, which arrived at Gallipoli in August.

LEMNOS, 31/12/'15.

Dear Mrs. Kirke,—We are having a rumpety rest here, after a strenuous four months at Anzac, and using New Year's Eve, one's thoughts naturally turn to one's friends across the water. I was fortunate to be selected for the command of the last few thousand to leave the Peninsula, and also commanded the 5th Brigade—for the last and eventful days there—on the final night, amongst the selected detachments given me for the defence of the final position from the Australian Divisions and the N.Z. A. Division. I was very glad to have "Chap" close to me in what was expected to be a warm corner, but brother Turk did not suspect our departure, so there was no close fighting. It was a great pleasure to be able to include "Chap's" name in the list they asked me for, especially as he had done such good work in Rabaul.

Yours very sincerely,

J. PATON, Col. (now Brigadier-Gen.),
Commanding 7th Infantry Brigade.
